13. Sublimation: The process of changing from solid to gas without passing through the liquid phase. Sublimation occurs naturally in the atmosphere, where ice crystals in clouds can sublimate directly into water vapor. It is also used in the food industry for preserving certain foods, such as ice cream, by freezing them and then allowing the air to sublimate the ice.
14. Thermodynamic Equilibrium: A state of a system where the macroscopic properties (such as temperature, pressure, and volume) are constant over time. In thermodynamics, equilibrium is a state where the system's internal energy is minimized, and there is no net flow of matter or energy between the system and its surroundings. It is a fundamental concept in physics and chemistry, used to describe the behavior of systems at different temperatures and pressures.
