QUESTION
 A 60-year-old male with a 20-year history of type 2 diabetes mellitus presents to the clinic with a 2-week history of increasing fatigue, weight loss, and decreased appetite. He reports that he has been unable to lose weight despite following a strict diet and exercise regimen. He also reports that he has been experiencing frequent urination and increased thirst. His medical history is significant for hypertension, hyperlipidemia, and chronic kidney disease (stage 3). He is currently taking metformin, insulin glargine, and lisinopril. His physical examination is unremarkable. Laboratory studies show a hemoglobin A1c of 10.5%, serum glucose of 250 mg/dL, and serum creatinine of 1.8 mg/dL. What is the most likely cause of his symptoms?

ANSWER
 A. Hypothyroidism
 B. Hyperthyroidism
 C. Cushing's disease
 D. Addison's disease

EXPLANATION
 The patient's symptoms of fatigue, weight loss, and decreased appetite are consistent with hyperthyroidism. The physical examination is unremarkable, which is not typical for hyperthyroidism. The laboratory studies show a hemoglobin A1c of 10.5%, which is significantly elevated, indicating poor glycemic control. The serum glucose of 250 mg/dL is also elevated. The serum creatinine of 1.8 mg/dL is within the normal range for a patient with stage 3 chronic kidney disease. The patient's medical history and current medications do not suggest a cause for his symptoms.
