since their trust estates are purely eleemosynary and the argument appears to possess all the less validity that a fair proportion of the annual receipts pass to the members and indirectly become liable to taxation while if it were not so it is within the competence of the Companies at any time to dissolve themselves as regards their corporate possessions and divide the assets Whether an equitable apportionment of the funds is made among the several grades is a question again for the Gilds themselves but the complaint that extravagant amounts are voted to the Courts may be met by pointing out that the greater the output in this or any other direction the greater is the presumed gain to the imperial exchequer from normal property tax The Common Two other points deserve to be noticed The About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works City of London Livery Companies' Commission: Reports of Mr. Hare and other inspectors of charities as to the charities of the minor companies Great Britain.
