The Church as Polis Arne Rasmusson, 2025-02-15 Political theology is one of the most influential theological movements of the latter part of the twentieth century and yet as Arne Rasmusson argues here the field suffers from deep inherent tensions in its attempt to mediate the Christian tradition and the modern emancipatory tradition Rasmusson contributes to political theology through an innovative discussion of the relationship between church and society and an exposition of the thought and work of political theology's influential representative Jürgen Moltmann Rasmusson further refines his argument by filtering Moltmann's theology through an exploration of Stanley Hauerwas's theological positions Unsettling

Meta-Ecclesiology Cyril Hovorun, 2015-08-18 The book explores the variables and invariables of the church Its argument is that self awareness of the church was often a matter of change depending on historical circumstances It encourages appreciating plurality in the church and sets the system of coordinates for identifying the ecclesial self Essays on Being Reformed Dirkie Smit, 2009-12-01 What does it mean to be Reformed Christians in the world today and in Africa and South Africa What does it mean to commemorate the legacy of John Calvin 1509 1564 after 500 years in a modern world characterised by democracy by popular notions of human dignity and human rights by worldwide struggles for individual freedoms and for social justice by a global economy in crisis when social historians argue about the lasting contribution of Calvin and his followers precisely with respect to all these modern phenomena The 28 essays by Dirkie Smit selected for this and present we explore the origins meaning and purpose of Christian political theology in an age of growing discontent with the once impregnable liberal democratic order of yesteryear Approaching politics as both art and science this book lays a challenge at the feet of political theologians to offer a theological account of politics that is genuinely illuminating of political reality and efficacious for the faithful who seek to operate within it Christianity Versus Corruption Miriam

Part 1 argues that civil governments are legitimate but penultimate and common but not neutral. It concludes that Christians should understand themselves as sojourners and exiles in their political communities. They ought to pursue justice, peace, and excellence in these communities but remember that these communities are temporary and thus not confuse them with the everlasting kingdom of the Lord Jesus Christ. Christians' ultimate citizenship is in this new creation kingdom. Part 2 reflects on how the political theology developed in Part 1 provides Christians with a framework for thinking about perennial issues of political and legal theory. Part 2 does not set out a detailed public policy or promote a particular political ideology. Rather, it suggests how Christians might think about important social issues in a wise and theologically sound way so that they might be better equipped to respond well to the specific controversies they face today. These issues include race, religious liberty, family, economics, justice, rights, authority, and civil resistance. After considering these matters, Part 2 concludes by reflecting on the classical liberal and conservative traditions as well as recent challenges to them by nationalist and progressivist movements.
