The Cognitive Neuroscience Of Consciousness Cognition Special Issue:

Cognitive Neuroscience of Consciousness Anil Seth, Geraint Rees, 2013-05-13 How do conscious experience subjectivity and free will arise from the brain and the body Even in the late 20th century consciousness was considered to be beyond the reach of science Now understanding the neural mechanisms underlying consciousness is recognized as a key objective for 21st century science The cognitive neuroscience of consciousness is a fundamentally multidisciplinary enterprise involving powerful new combinations of functional brain imaging computational modelling theoretical innovation and basic neurobiology Its progress will be marked by new insights not only into the complex brain mechanisms underlying consciousness but also by novel clinical approaches to a wide range of neurological and psychiatric disorders These innovations are well represented by the contents of the present volume A target article by Victor Lamme puts forward the contentious position that neural evidence should trump evidence from behaviour and introspection in any theory of consciousness This article and its several commentaries advance one of the fundamental debates in consciousness science namely whether there exists non reportable phenomenal consciousness perhaps dependent on local rather than global neural processes Other articles explore the wider terrain of the new science of consciousness For example Maniscalco and colleagues use theta burst transcranial magnetic stimulation to selectively impair metacognitive awareness Massimini and coworkers examine changes in functional connectivity during anesthesia and Vanhaudenhuyse et al describe innovations in detecting residual awareness following traumatic brain injury Together then contents of this volume exemplify the grand challenge of consciousness in combining transformative questions about the human condition with a tractable programme of experimental and theoretical research

Image, Language, Brain Alec Marantz, Yasushi Miyashita, Wayne O'Neil, Wayne A. O'Neil, 2000 The papers in this volume discuss the current status of the cognitive neuroscience synthesis in research on vision whether and how linguistics and neuroscience can be integrated and how integrative brain mechanisms can be studied through the use of noninvasive brain imaging techniques Recent attempts to unify linguistic theory and brain science have grown out of recognition that a proper understanding of language in the brain must reflect the steady advances in linguistic theory of the last forty years The first Mind Articulation Project Symposium addressed two main questions How can the understanding of language from linguistic research be transformed through the study of the biological basis of language And how can our understanding of the brain be transformed through this same research The best model so far of such mutual constraint is research on vision Indeed the two long term goals of the Project are to make linguistics and brain science mutually constraining in the way that has been attempted in the study of the visual system and to formulate a cognitive theory that more strongly constrains visual neuroscience The papers in this volume discuss the current status of the cognitive neuroscience synthesis in research on vision whether and how linguistics and neuroscience can be integrated and how integrative brain mechanisms can be studied through the use of noninvasive brain imaging techniques Contributors Noam Chomsky Ann Christophe Robert Desimone Richard Frackowiak Angela Friederici Edward Gibson Peter Indefrey Masao Ito Willem Levelt Alec Marantz Jacques Mehler Yasushi Miyashita David Poeppel Franck Ramus John Reynolds Kensuke Sekihara Hiroshi Shibasaki Electromagnetic Field Theories of Consciousness: Opportunities and Obstacles Tam Hunt,Jonathan Schooler,Johnjoe McFadden,Arnaud Delorme,Colin G.
