The Cold War A Documentary:

CNN's Cold War Documentary Arnold Beichman,2000 A collection of essays in which various scholars debate the pros and cons of the twenty four part television series on the Cold War produced by CNN     The Cold War John Zawacki,1998 Covers the long ideological conflict between the communist world and the Western democracies from the end of World War II to the collapse of communism in Europe in 1990     Running Time Nora Sayre,1982     The Cold War on Film Paul Frazier,2021-07-12 The Cold War on Film illustrates how to use film as a teaching tool It stands on its own as an account of both the war and the major films that have depicted it Memories of the Cold War have often been shaped by the popular films that depict it for example The Manchurian Candidate The Hunt for Red October and Charlie Wilson's War among others The Cold War on Film examines how the Cold War has been portrayed through a selection of 10 iconic films that represent it through dramatization and storytelling as opposed to through documentary footage The book includes an introduction to the war's history and a timeline of events Each of the 10 chapters that follow focuses on a specific Cold War film Chapters offer a uniquely detailed level of historical context for the films weighing their depiction of events against the historical record and evaluating how well or how poorly those films reflected the truth and shaped public memory and discourse over the war A comprehensive annotated bibliography of print and electronic sources aids students and teachers in further research

Cultural Transfer and Political Conflicts Andreas Kötzing,Caroline Moine,2017-07-17 Film festivals during the Cold War were fraught with the political and social tensions that dominated the world at the time While film was becoming an increasingly powerful medium the European festivals in particular established themselves as showcases for filmmakers and their perceptions of reality At the same time their prestigious international character attracted the interest of states and private players The history of these festivals thus sheds light not only on the films they made available to various publics but on the cultural policies and political processes that informed their operations Presenting new research by an international group of younger scholars Cultural Transfer and Political Conflicts critically investigates postwar history in the context of film festivals reconstructing not only their social background and international dispensation but also their centrality for cultural transfers between the East the West and the South during the Cold War     The American Diplomatic Revolution

Joseph M. Siracusa,1977     The Cold War and Asian Cinemas Poshek Fu,Man-Fung Yip,2019-11-28 This book offers an interdisciplinary historically grounded study of Asian cinemas complex responses to the Cold War conflict It situates the global ideological rivalry within regional and local political social and cultural processes while offering a transnational and cross regional focus This volume makes a major contribution to constructing a cultural and popular cinema history of the global Cold War Its geographical focus is set on East Asia Southeast Asia and South Asia In adopting such an inclusive approach it draws attention to the different manifestations and meanings of the connections between the Cold War and cinema across Asian borders Many essays in the volume have a transnational and cross regional focus one that sheds light on Cold War influenced networks such as the circulation of socialist films across communist countries and on the efforts of American agencies such as the United States Information Service and the Asia Foundation to establish a transregional infrastructure of free cinema to contain the communist influences in Asia. With its interdisciplinary orientation and broad geographical focus the book will appeal to scholars and students from a wide variety of fields including film studies history especially the burgeoning field of cultural Cold War studies Asian studies and US Asian cultural relations

The Big Picture John W. Lemza, 2021-09-29 Capitalizing on thousands of feet of accumulated footage captured by combat camera crews during the early years of the Korean War a small group of US Army officers conceptualized a film series that would widen viewers understanding of the service and its mission. Their efforts produced the documentary television series that in late 1951 would become The Big Picture. Although it would take years to fully utilize the emerging technologies and develop the concept into a popularly recognized television series The Big Picture did evolve into a vehicle whose intention was to help the army tell its story sell its relevance in the emerging Cold War and inform and educate its audience about American ideals. Its messages captured the early post 1945 zeitgeist and reflected a national mood that was anticommunist steeped in foundational principles of American exceptionalism and trusting of elite leadership. John W Lemza's The Big Picture argues that the show like others produced for television during that time by the armed forces served as a vehicle for directed propaganda scripted to send important Cold War messages to both those in uniform and the American public. In this first systematic study of its production and reception history as well as its themes and cultural impact Lemza shows how the producers incorporated specific Cold War themes such as anticommunism into episodes and deployed television's small screen as the intersection of propaganda and policy during the Cold War period. John Lemza's study reveals that the longer The Big Picture maintained those themes the more they began to lose their resonance especially when the cultural and social environment of the United States began changing in the mid 1960s. The series' producers chose to continue on a course that was set during the early Cold War years and the credibility of the show began to suffer. Throughout the course of its two decade production run however The Big Picture cast a big shadow as the premier military program influencing viewing audiences through primetime television and syndication

I was a Cold War Monster Cynthia Hendershot, 2001 Horror films provide a guide to many of the sociological fears of the Cold War era. In an age when warning audiences of impending death was the order of the day for popular nonfiction horror films provided an area where this fear could be lived out to its ghastly conclusion. Because enemies and potential situations of fear lurked everywhere within the home the government the family and the very self horror films could speak to the invasive fears of the cold war era. I Was a Cold War Monster examines cold war anxieties as they were reflected in British and American films from the fifties through the early sixties. This study examines how cold war horror films combined anxiety over social change with the erotic in such films as Psycho The Tingler The Horror of Dracula and House of Wax

Cold War Fantasies Ronnie D. Lipschutz, 2001-10-16 As memories of the Cold

War recede it becomes more and more difficult to remember what it was about and why it evoked such feelings of intensity and fatalism Fortunately we have a gold mine of movies and novels to help us recall why an entire generation of Americans grew up ducking under school desks in air raid drills and stocking the family bomb shelter Cold War Fantasies retrieves those times based on the idea that a nation's history self concept and collective anxiety are reflected in popular culture In Cold War Fantasies Ronnie Lipschutz combines an historical account of foreign and domestic politics from 1945 to 1995 with summaries and analyses of thirty novels and films contemporaneously published and produced Lipschutz rejects the standard line on the Cold War and critically examines the impacts and effects of language and images on politics Viewing those films and reading those novels enables the reader to come away with a clearer sense of how people felt during the Cold War period about themselves about the enemy and about the world while living in the shadow of the atomic bomb

The Columbia Companion to American History on Film Peter C. Rollins, 2004-03-24 American history has always been an irresistible source of inspiration for filmmakers and today for good or ill most Americans sense of the past likely comes more from Hollywood than from the works of historians In important films such as The Birth of a Nation 1915 Roots 1977 Apocalypse Now 1979 and Saving Private Ryan 1998 how much is entertainment and how much is rooted in historical fact In The Columbia Companion to American History on Film more than seventy scholars consider the gap between history and Hollywood They examine how filmmakers have presented and interpreted the most important events topics eras and figures in the American past often comparing the film versions of events with the interpretations of the best historians who have explored the topic Divided into eight broad categories Eras Wars and Other Major Events Notable People Groups Institutions and Movements Places Themes and Topics and Myths and Heroes the volume features extensive cross references a filmography of discussed and relevant films notes and a bibliography of selected historical works on each subject The Columbia Companion to American History on Film is also an important resource for teachers with extensive information for research or for course development appropriate for both high school and college students Though each essay reflects the unique body of film and print works covering the subject at hand every essay addresses several fundamental questions What are the key films on this topic What sources did the filmmaker use and how did the film deviate or remain true to its sources How have film interpretations of a particular historical topic changed and what sorts of factors technological social political historiographical have affected their evolution Have filmmakers altered the historical record with a view to enhancing drama or to enhance the truth of their putative message

Cinematic Cold War Tony Shaw, Denise Jeanne Youngblood, 2010 The first book length survey of cinema's vital role in the Cold War cultural combat between the US and the USSR Focuses on 10 films five American and five Soviet both iconic and lesser known works showing that cinema provided a crucial outlet for the global debate between democratic and communist ideologies

Hollywood and the End of the Cold War Bryn Upton, 2014-08-26 From the late 1940s until the early 1990s the Cold War was perhaps the most critical and defining aspect of American culture influencing television music and movies among other forms of popular entertainment. Films in particular were at the center of the battle for the hearts and minds of the American public. Throughout this period the Cold War influenced what movies got produced, how such movies were made and how audiences understood the films they watched. In the post Cold War era some genres of film suffered from the shift in our national narratives while others were quickly reimagined for an audience with different political and social fears. In Hollywood and the End of the Cold War Signs of Cinematic Change Bryn Upton compares films from the late Cold War era with movies of similar themes from the post Cold War era. In this volume Upton pays particular attention to shifts in narrative that reflect changes in American culture attitudes and ideas. In exploring how the absence of the Cold War has changed the way we understand and interpret film this volume seeks to answer several key questions such as Has the end of the Cold War altered how we tell our stories. Has it changed how we perceive ourselves. In what ways has our popular culture been affected by the absence of this once dominant presence. With its focus on themes that are central to the concerns of many historians including civil religion, social fracture and the culture wars Hollywood and the End of the Cold War will serve as a useful tool for those seeking to integrate film into the classroom as well as for film scholars exploring representations of sociopolitical change on screen.

Redeeming the Wasteland Michael Curtin, 1995

During the early 1960s the golden age of network documentary commercial television engaged in one of the most ambitious public education efforts in U.S. history as all three networks dramatically expanded their documentary programming. Promoted by government leaders funded by broadcasters and hailed by critics these documentaries sought to mobilize public opinion behind a more activist policy of U.S. leadership around the globe. The programs also were part of an explicit effort to make the vast wasteland of prime time television live up to its vaunted potential to educate, inform and enlighten. After more than a decade as the nation's shop window television in the early 1960s promised to become the viewer's window onto the Free World, a world that President John F. Kennedy described as being full of promise and peril. By tracing the multiple and shifting relations between the government, the TV industry and viewers, Michael Curtin explains how the most commercially unprofitable genre in television history became the most celebrated and controversial form of programming during the New Frontier era. This book is an important contribution to our understanding of how television mediates powerful social forces and will be indispensable to anyone interested in media studies and the history of the Cold War period.

The Cold War Presidency Thomas Langston, 2007

Organized chronologically by president, The Cold War Presidency presents original analytical essays on the presidents and their roles during the Cold War from Harry Truman through George H. W. Bush and over 150 important primary source documents with explanatory headnotes. The pairing together of these useful materials allows researchers to learn comprehensively or selectively about the interdependence of the presidency and the Cold War.

The Cold War Comes to Main Street Lisle A. Rose, 1999

In 1950 Main Street American was abruptly traumatized. The sudden prospect of thermonuclear war with the Soviet Union Senator McCarthy's vicious anticommunist crusade and the beginning of the Korean War all combined to dampen the public mood. The Cold War invaded every home. Rose maintains that 1950 was a pivotal year for the nation. He argues that the convergence of Korea, McCarthy, and the bomb wounded the nation in ways from which we've never fully recovered. Brimming with originality, this book makes readers look at the Cold War from a dozen different angles.

The American Diplomatic Revolution Joseph M. Siracusa, 1977

Film Study Frank Manchel, 1990-10. The four volumes of Film Study include a fresh approach to each of the basic categories in the original edition. Volume one examines the film as film; volume two focuses on the thematic approach to film; volume three draws on the history of film; and volume four contains extensive appendices listing film distributors, sources, and historical information, as well as an index of authors, titles, and film personalities.

Deconstructing Dr. Strangelove Sean M. Maloney, 2020-07-01. King of the Cold War crisis film, Dr Strangelove became a cultural touchstone from the moment of its release in 1964. The duck and cover generation saw it as a satire on nuclear issues and Cold War thinking. Subsequent generations removed from the film's historical moment came to view it as a quasi-documentary about an unfathomable secret world. Sean M. Maloney uses Dr Strangelove and other genre classics like Fail Safe and The Bedford Incident to investigate a curious pop cultural contradiction. Nuclear crisis films repeatedly portrayed the failures of the Cold War's deterrent system. Yet the system worked. What does this inconsistency tell us about the genre? What does it tell us about the deterrent system for that matter? Blending film analysis with Cold War history, Maloney looks at how the celluloid crises stack up against reality, or at least as much of reality as we can reconstruct from these films with confidence. The result is a daring intellectual foray that casts new light on Dr Strangelove, one of the Cold War era's defining films.

Cinema in the Cold War Cyril Buffet, 2017-10-02. The film industry was an important propaganda element during the Cold War. As with other conflicts, the Cold War was fought not just with weapons but with words and images. Throughout the conflict, cinema was a reflection of the societies, the ideologies, and the political climates in which the films were produced. On both sides, great stars, major companies, famous scriptwriters, and filmmakers were enlisted to help the propaganda effort. It was not only propaganda that was created by the cinema of the Cold War; it also articulated criticism, and the movie industries were centres of the fabrication of modern myths. The cinema was undoubtedly a place of Cold War confrontation and rivalry, and yet there were aesthetic, technical, narrative exchanges between West and East. All genres of film contributed to the Cold War: thrillers, westerns, comedies, musicals, espionage films, documentaries, cartoons, science fiction, historical dramas, war films, and many more. These films shaped popular culture and national identities, creating vivid characters like James Bond, Alec Leamas, Harry Palmer, and Rambo. While the United States and the Soviet Union were the two main protagonists in this on-screen duel, other countries such as Britain, Germany, Poland, Italy, and Czechoslovakia also played crucially important parts, and their prominent cinematographic contributions to the Cold War are all covered in this volume. This book was originally published as a special issue of Cold War History.
