The Choice of Law David Farquhar Cavers, 1985 This publication contains selected essays written by the author from 1933 to 1983 In his earlier works he presents the view that in a conflicts case the choice should be between rules and not between states or jurisdictions In the later essays he reviews the choice of law issues surrounding mass torts due to airplane accidents drugs and defective products

Private International Law Symeon C. Symeonides, 2021-11-08 This book compares the two golden ages of private international law PIL the first is the era of Story and Savigny in the nineteenth century while the second comprises the last fifty years The period between 1970 and 2020 has been one of rapid changes and dense legislative responses exemplified by the adoption of over one hundred national PIL codifications and almost as many international or regional conventions and regulations These instruments provide a rich source for this book's incisive and instructive comparisons and a fertile ground for a reliable assessment of the progress of PIL as a discipline This book skillfully uncovers and meticulously documents the gradual and largely unnoticed transition of PIL from the idealism of the nineteenth century to the pragmatic eclecticism and pluralism of the twenty first century

Choice of Law for American Courts Edwin S. Fruehwald, 2001-03-30 This study proposes a multilateralist method of choice of law in order to alleviate the great disarray that currently exists in American choice law In the early 20th century there was a fairly uniform multilateralist method of choice law In the 1920s and 30s however scholars and courts began to reject this method Viewed as too mechanical the method sometimes resulted in the choice of law of a state with only a tenuous connection to the controversy Currently state courts use four different approaches to choice law with numerous material variations This study rejects these approaches on normative constitutional and practical grounds Instead it advocates that courts adopt a multilateralist approach to choice of law that is forum and content neutral and that respects the rights of both individuals and states The study also argues that such an approach should satisfy a constitutional standard that requires a court not choose one state's law when another state has a significantly closer connection to controversy The proposed method consists of two parts The first part determines the states that have created legal relations applying to the dispute When more than one state has created a legal relations applying to the dispute When more than one state has created a legal relation that applies to the controversy the second part adopts the law of the state that had the closest connection The study then applies the suggested method to numerous choice of law problems
