devote money or time to politics remind citizens of their economic fears and personal constraints leading to undermobilization and nonparticipation Adam Seth Levine explains why the set of people who become politically active on financial insecurity issues is therefore quite narrow When money is needed only those who care about the issues but are not personally affected become involved When time is needed participation is limited to those not personally affected or those who are personally affected but outside of the labor force with time to spare The latter explains why it is relatively easy to mobilize retirees on topics that reflect personal financial concerns such as Social Security and Medicare In general however when political representation requires a large group to make their case economic insecurity threats are uniquely disadvantaged Scrutinizing the foundations of political behavior American Insecurity offers a new perspective on collective participation
