Coastal Landscapes of the Mesolithic Almut Schülke, 2020-03-06 Coastal Landscapes of the Mesolithic Human Engagement with the Coast from the Atlantic to the Baltic Sea explores the character and significance of coastal landscapes in the Mesolithic on different scales and with various theoretical perspectives and methodological approaches Mesolithic people were strongly connected to the sea with coastal areas vital for subsistence and communication across the water This anthology includes case studies from Scandinavia western Europe and the Baltic area presented by key international researchers Topics addressed include large scale analyses of the archaeological and geological development of coastal areas the exploration of coastal environments with interdisciplinary methods the discussion of the character of coastal settlements and of their possible networks social and economic practices along the coast as well as perceptions and cosmological aspects of coastal areas Together these topics and approaches contribute in an innovative way to the understanding of the complexity of topographically changing coastal areas as both border zones between land and sea and as connecting landscapes Providing novel insights into the study of the Mesolithic as well as coastal areas and landscapes in general the book is an important resource for researchers of the Mesolithic and coastal archaeology Cold-storage Legislation United States. Food Administration, 1919 Annual Report of the United States Food Administration United States Food Administration, 1918 Advances In Coastal And Ocean Engineering, Vol 2 Philip L-f Liu, Ib A Svendsen, Uday Putrevu, James R Houston, Subrata Kumar Chakrabarti, 1996-07-03 This volume contains six papers discussing coastal processes and physical and numerical modeling In the first paper Svendsen and Putrevu give an extensive review on the state of understanding of surf zone hydrodynamics including subjects such as wave breaking wave induced currents and instability of nearshore currents and infragravity waves They point out that the most urgent need is to develop an adequate theory for wave breaking and broken waves in the surf zone One of the methods for studying the complex coastal processes is to perform laboratory experiments However physical models are always plagued by scale and laboratory effects because the coastal process involves many different length and time scales In the second paper Kamphuis presents a detailed discussion on the sources and implications of the scale and laboratory effects on physical modeling The third and the fourth papers are two parts of the discussion on the mathematical modeling of the meso tidal barrier island coasts To understand the dynamics of coastal inlet systems one can either rely on empirical knowledge and construct various forms of empirical and semi empirical models Part I or develop a set of mathematical models based on the physical processes Part II Although these models do not provide the details of the dynamics they give valuable knowledge of the equilibrium state relationships de Vriend and Ribberink give a detailed review on two models Initial Sedimentation Erosion models and Medium Term Morphodynamic models They have also presented many examples of applications In the fifth paper Houston gives a brief review on different methods to mitigate beach loss caused by storms or persistent long term erosion He then describes in detail the method of beach nourishment which is also called a beach fill This paper discusses the information that must be collected to design a beach fill and that should be monitored after the completion of the project The last paper of this volume shifts our attention to the design of offshore structures such as gravity structures floating barges and tankers Chakrabarti discusses the effects of the uniform and shear currents on fixed and floating structures Fishery Market News ,1988

McMillan,2000-02-01 This book examines over 4000 years of culture history of the related Nuuchahmilt Ditidaht and Makah peoples on western Vancouver Island and the Olympic Peninsula Using data from the Toquaht Archaeological Project McMillan challenges current ethnographic interpretations that show little or no change in these peoples culture Instead by combining historical evidence recent archaeological data and oral traditions he demonstrates conclusively that there were in fact extensive cultural changes and restructuring in these societies in the century following contact with Europeans McMillan brings the reader up to modern times identifying the major issues that face the Nuuchahmilt Ditidaht and Makah communities today The Færoe islands pilot Admiralty hydrogr. dept,Great Britain.
