

The fourth volume of The Penguin Companion is a guide to the older or (for the European) less accessible reaches of world literature.

Ancient Greece and Rome occupy the first section of the volume, and Byzantium the second. The third section, devoted to Oriental writing, covers Chinese, Japanese, Arabic, Persian, Hebrew and Sanskrit among major languages, and Polynesian, Indonesian, Thai, Vietnamese and Tibetan among the less familiar. The fourth section, on Africa, emphasizes the growing importance of new writers there and contains much information which is not readily available elsewhere.

THE PENGUIN COMPANION TO LITERATURE

This new reference work signposts all the important literatures of the ancient and modern world. The standard entries are arranged alphabetically by authors and consist of biographical sketches, critical assessments and selective bibliographies of editions, translations in English, biographies, critical studies, etc. In addition there are entries describing literary forms and genres, styles and schools, conventions and traditions, particularly where these are likely to be unfamiliar to Western readers.

The remainder of the work is arranged as follows:
