Story Of Creation:

The Story of Creation Calum M. Carmichael, 2019-06-07 Calum Carmichael asserts that biblical texts both in the Old and New Testaments which have been the subject of interpretation for centuries are themselves often the products of the ancient authors interpretation of still other literary compositions Claiming that parts of the Bible constitute major and very early examples of exegesis Carmichael demonstrates that the author of the story of creation in Genesis 1 produced his work in reaction to troubling issues that arose in the story of the exodus The author of John s Gospel in turn recounted the life of Jesus in light of the story of creation Pointing out that much of modern literary criticism has roots in biblical hermeneutics Carmichael turns his attention to the richness and complexity of the ancient world s own modes of interpretation By doing so he is able to uncover the heretofore unrecognized influence of the exodus story on the creation story and of the creation story on John s Gospel Carmichael first shows how the author of the seven day scheme of creation in Genesis produced it in response to his reading of the exodus story which was centuries old in his time He then shows the extent to which the author of John s Gospel was influenced by first century cosmological speculation Philo s in particular In the first five chapters of his gospel the author elaborated the details of the creation story to present in allegorical fashion incidents from the life of Jesus

Stories of the Beginning E. J. van Wolde, 1997 Here by a leading Dutch woman biblical theologian who studied under Umberto Eco is a brilliant new approach to the creation stories in the first eleven chapters of Genesis Contrary to those who believe that our time is seeing the end of the great stories and that only science and the facts count she argues that storytellers and poets can stand closer to experience and feelings and give expression to something which is equally a given and that these early chapters of the Bible contain some of the most important stories ever written First comes a discussion of the accounts of the creation of the world paradise and the fall Cain and Abel Noah and the Flood and the building of the Tower of Babel often shedding quite a new light on familiar material Then after some basic reflections come creation stories of a different kind from Asia Australia America Africa and Europe from the Rig Veda and the Enuma Elish through myths and legends to Hesiod s theogony the Edda and the Kalevala Finally there is a discussion of the scientific account of creation and evolution and how it relates to all that has gone before The book ends with two stories of earth by contemporary Indians from Brazil and North America
