Straits Used for International Navigation José Antonio de Yturriaga, 1991 After an introductory chapter concerning the definition of Straits used for international navigation the author examines in detail the evolution of the question in the years prior to the convening of UNCLOS III during the preparatory works of the Sea Bed Committee and throughout the Conference The second part of the book studies the legal norms set up by the 1982 UN Convention on the Law of the Sea concerning the regime of transit passage for maritime and air navigation applicable in most of the straits used for international navigation and the regime of innocent passage residually applied in the other straits In the final chapter the author makes a critical appraisal of the new regimes of navigation and overflight in straits exposes the implications of such regimes in Spain analyzes the applicability of the Convention's regulations before their coming into force and examines the practice followed in the last few years by the most important States which favoured or opposed the regime of transit passage From his position as Deputy Head of the Spanish Delegation to the Law of the Sea Conference Ambassador de Yturriaga participated from the very beginning in the work of UNCLOS III and was an active protagonist in the debates of the straits question The book offers a first hand testimony of the straits negotiation which will be extremely useful for scholars and students of the Law of the Sea

Navigational Rights and Freedoms and the New Law of the Sea Donald R. Rothwell, Sam Bateman, 2021-10-18 Navigational rights and freedoms have been central to the development of the law of the sea since the original debates over whether the seas were open or closed to maritime traffic The 1982 UN Convention on the Law of the Sea recognises the legitimate rights of coastal states to proclaim sovereignty and assert jurisdiction over vast areas of maritime space In return maritime states are given a range of navigational rights over waters ranging from the territorial sea through to the high sea The new regime of the law of the sea created by the Convention presents an opportunity to review developments in the law of navigational rights and freedoms This book assesses the navigational regime established by the 1982 Convention with emphasis given to the continuing importance of the freedom of the seas Navigation in the territorial sea and international straits is reviewed especially in the Straits of Malacca and Singapore and the Torres Strait Archipelagic navigation from the perspective of two claimant states Indonesia and the Philippines and a user state South Korea is also considered The interaction of environmental concerns with navigational rights is an important feature of the current law of the sea regime with relevant conventions assessed and the role of the International Maritime Organization in developing navigational standards considered Both European and Canadian practice in the protection of sensitive marine environments and the impact upon navigational rights is also considered Finally the roles of the International Tribunal for the Law of the Sea and the International Maritime Organization in dispute resolution are reviewed before a concluding consideration of the future for navigational rights and freedoms in the twenty first century Contemporary Issues Relating to Straits Used for International Navigation Kheng Lian Koh,1980

United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea, 1982 Myron H. Nordquist,1985 These commentaries are based almost entirely on the formal and informal documentation of the Third United Nations Conference on the Law of the Sea UNCLOS III 1973 1982 coupled where necessary with the personal knowledge of editors contributors or reviewers many of whom were principal negotiators or UN personnel who participated in the Conference Straits Used for International Navigation ,1992 The Law of the Sea ,1992 The Proceedings of the Symposium on the Straits Used for International Navigation Bayram Öztürk,Reşat Özkan,2002 The Legal Regime of the Turkish Straits Nihan Ünlü,2021-10-25 This is the thirteenth book in the series International Straits of the World initiated and edited at the Graduate College of Marine Studies of the University of Delaware In 1987 the ninth book in this series dealt with the Turkish Straits Since then however the rapid developments of the law of the sea especially with regard to coastal state jurisdiction and the status of international straits has called for a new analysis of the heavily trafficked narrow waterway that links the Mediterranean Sea with the Black Sea The 1982 UN Convention on the Law of the Sea provided a special regime for straits used for international navigation Nothing in this part of the convention however affected the legal regime of the Turkish Straits The convention exempted those straits in which passage was regulated in whole or in part by long standing international conventions specifically related to that strait The Montreux Convention of 1936 still in force was designed to regulate passage through the Dardanelles the Sea of Marmara and the Bosphorus or the Turkish Straits Dr nl has addressed a key international policy question namely in the light of the evolving law of the sea and the special role of the International Maritime Organization should the 1936 Montreux Convention be amended or denounced or changed by some unilateral act of Turkey In sum can the convention be sustained as it is modified by unilateral action denounced by the parties or its provisions changed in some other way by international action The author has even explored the possibility of making the straits a particularly sensitive sea area allowing the coastal state to take expanded jurisdiction to prevent marine pollution Dr nl has done a great service to scholarship on the legal regime of the Turkish Straits She has left her readers with policy options that will be useful in trying to reconcile the use of a strait not covered by the 1982 Law of the Sea Convention with the exigencies of modern international law Transit Passage Through Straits Used for International Navigation Tommy Thong Bee Koh,1994 International Organizations and the Law of the Sea 1985 Netherlands Institute for the Law of the,1987-06 The Strait of Magellan Michael A.
