Song To The Flying Fox:

The Song to the Flying Fox Jürg Wassmann, 1991 They Make Themselves Jane Fajans, 1997-08-04 For generations of anthropologists the Baining people have presented a challenge because of their apparent lack of cultural or social structure This group of small scale horticulturists seems devoid of the complex belief systems and social practices that characterize other traditional peoples of Papua New Guinea Their daily existence is mundane and repetitive in the extreme articulated by only the most elementary familial relationships and social connections The routine of everyday life however is occasionally punctuated by stunningly beautiful festivals of masked dancers which the Baining call play and to which they attribute no symbolic significance In a new work sure to evoke considerable repercussions and debate in anthropological theory Jane Fajans courageously takes on the Baining Problem arguing that the Baining define themselves not through intricate cosmologies or social networks but through the meanings generated by their own productive and reproductive work translations and interpretations of this book differ greatly from one another Does the Hebrew text indeed justify this To answer this question an unprejudiced philological analysis is necessary that keeps strictly to the text which does justice to the context and approaches the book intrinsically and as rationally as possible Such methods followed by the author of this text make clear that the SofS is a continuous story running from SofS 1 2 to 8 14 with a cohesive structure which is readily comprehensible and logical That even applies to verses e g 2 15 6 12 which are viewed by most as puzzling In the SofS a consistent use of language is employed which means for example that the individual speakers are recognisable this together with the intrinsically cohesive structure of the work is a central argument in this volume
