US Fast Battleships 1938-91 Lawrence Burr,2011-12-20 In 1938 the United States abandoned the constraints imposed by the Washington Treaty and began work on a new class of super battleships This book covers the design construction and employment of the four Iowa class battleships the largest in the American fleet During World War II they served as guards for the aircraft carriers and their bombardments provided cover for the numerous landings in the Pacific At the war's end the Japanese signed their surrender on the decks of an Iowa class battleship the USS Missouri After World War II the ships continued to serve providing support during Korea Vietnam and even the first Gulf War This book tells the full story of the greatest of the American battleships    The Iowa Class Battleships Malcolm Muir,1991 See review for entry UG446

The Iowa-Class Battleships on Deck David Doyle,2017-07-06 The Iowa class battleships were America's and the world's last active battleships serving as recently as 1995 Back in the World War II era six of the class were ordered and four completed Iowa New Jersey Missouri and Wisconsin The Missouri rose to fame as the site of the Japanese surrender ending WWII Each armed with nine 16 inch rifles able to hurl 2 700 lb shells more than 23 miles the Iowas were capable of combating formidable sea going foes In actuality however their huge main guns were used instead to shell enemy land positions during WWII Korea Vietnam and the Gulf War In later years their original arrays of 16 inch and five inch guns were augmented with missiles including the Harpoon as well as the Tomahawk cruise missiles Explore the decks and depths of these mighty warships once home to thousands of sailors 88 pages packed with over 270 color photos carefully chosen to show the subtle differences between these four near identical ships    Iowa Class Battleships Lester Abbey,2012-08-30 The ShipCraft series provides in depth information about building and modifying model kits of famous warship types Lavishly illustrated each book takes the modeller through a brief history of the subject class highlighting differences between sister ships and changes in their appearance over their careers This includes paint schemes and camouflage featuring colour profiles and highly detailed line drawings and scale plans The modelling section reviews the strengths and weaknesses of available kits lists commercial accessory sets for super detailing of the ships and provides hints on modifying and improving the basic kit This is followed by an extensive photographic gallery of selected high quality models in a variety of scales and the book concludes with a section on research references books monographs large scale plans and relevant websites The Iowa class were the largest fastest and most modern US battleships of the war and the formal surrender of Japan was signed on the deck of one of them USS Missouri Modernised post war they served in Korea Vietnam and as late as the first Gulf War They are among the most popular subjects of all for model kits    Iowa Class Battleships Robert F. Sumrall,1988 A unique compilation of technical data and the career histories of the Iowa New Jersey Wisconsin and Missouri    "Iowa" Class Battleships ,    The Battleships of the Iowa Class Philippe Caresse,2019 The four battleships of the Iowa class the crowning achievement of US battleship construction had exceptionally long careers and each in their way left a distinctive mark not only on the U S Navy but on naval history at large Built as the ultimate American battleship and designed to engage the major units of the Japanese and German fleets the vessels were commissioned in the closing stages of World War II the beginning of half a century of service during which individual units saw action in the Korean War the Vietnam War the Lebanese Civil War and finally the Persian Gulf War As such these ships are symbolic of the primacy of U S seapower during the Cold War and the preservation of all four members of this mighty class as museums is testament not only to their enduring fascination for successive generations of Americans but also to the immense technical financial military and political resources wielded by the United States during the second half of the twentieth century Iowa Class Battleships first investigation into the explosion conducted by the US Navy concluded that one of the gun turret crew members Clayton Hartwig who died in the explosion had deliberately caused it. During the investigation numerous leaks to the media later attributed to Navy officers and investigators implied that Hartwig and another sailor Kendall Truitt had engaged in a homosexual relationship and that Hartwig had caused the explosion after their relationship had soured. In its report however the Navy concluded that the evidence did not show that Hartwig was homosexual but that he was suicidal and had caused the explosion with either an electronic or chemical detonator. The victims families the media and members of Congress were sharply critical of the Navy's findings. The Senate and House Armed Services Committees both held hearings to inquire into the Navy's investigation and later released reports disputing the Navy's conclusions. The Senate committee asked the General Accounting Office GAO to review the Navy's investigation. To assist the GAO Sandia National Laboratories provided a team of scientists to review the Navy's technical investigation. During its review Sandia determined that a significant overram of the powder bags into the gun had occurred as it was being loaded and that the overram could have caused the explosion. A

Pages 47 Chapters USS Missouri Iowa class battleship USS New Jersey USS Iowa USS Wisconsin Excerpt The Iowa class battleships were a class of fast battleships ordered by the United States Navy in 1939 and 1940 to escort the Fast Carrier Task Forces which would operate in the Pacific Theater of World War II. Six were ordered during the course of World War II but only four were completed in time to see service in the Pacific Theater. The last two had been laid down but as a result of the postwar drawdown of the armed forces they were canceled prior to completion and eventually scrapped. Like other third generation American battleships the Iowa class followed the design pattern set forth in the preceding North Carolina and South Dakota class battleships which placed great emphasis on speed as well as on the secondary and anti aircraft batteries. Between the mid 1940s and the early 1990s the Iowa class battleships were involved in four major wars fought by the United States. In World War II they defended aircraft carriers and shelled Japanese positions. During the Korean War the battleships provided seaborne artillery support for United Nations forces fighting against North Korea and in 1968 New Jersey shelled Viet Cong and Vietnam People's Army military forces in the Vietnam War. All four were reactivated and armed with missiles during the 1980s as part of the 600 ship Navy initiative in 1991 Missouri and Wisconsin fired missiles and 16 inch 406 mm guns at Iraqi targets during the First Gulf War. Citing the impending end of the Cold War and the sizable operating expense the United States Navy decommissioned all four battleships in the late 1980s and early 1990s. Initially all four battleships were removed from the Naval Vessel Register however the United States Congress compelled the Navy to reinstate two of the Battleship Iowa Lawrence Burr, 2025.
