(Chapter - 11) (Sound) (Exercises)
(Class - IX)

Question 1:

What is sound and how is it produced?

Answer 1:

Sound is a form of energy and it is produced due to vibrations of different types of object. For example: A vibrating tuning fork, a bell, wires in a sitar and a guitar etc.

Question 2:

Describe with the help of a diagram, how compressions and rarefactions are produced in air near a source of sound.

Answer 2:

If we blow a horn, speak, or produce sound by an object in air we are pushing the air molecules. These molecules, in turn, push the adjacent molecules which impart their energy to the next ones. After losing energy in the interaction, the molecule is back to its original (mean) position. This results in formation of compressions and rarefactions.

Question 3:

Why sound wave is called a longitudinal wave?

Answer 3:

A sound wave is called a longitudinal wave because it travels in the form of compressions and rarefactions in the medium, where the particles of the medium vibrate in a direction which is parallel to the direction of propagation of the sound wave.

Question 4:

Which characteristic of the sound helps you to identify your friend by his voice while sitting with others in a dark room?

Answer 4:

The timbre of sound is that characteristic which enables us to distinguish one sound from the other even when these are of the same pitch and loudness. Each person has its own timbre of sound and this characteristic helps us to identify a person from others even without looking at him (i.e., in a dark room).

Question 5:

Flash and thunder are produced simultaneously. But thunder is heard a few seconds after the flash is seen, why?

Answer 5:

The flash of light is seen earlier than the thunder of sound even though both are produced simultaneously because the speed of light (c) is greater than speed of sound (v) by 10^6 as $\frac{c}{v} = \frac{3 \times 10^8 \text{ m/s}}{340 \text{ m/s}} \approx 10^6$.
