Smith, Maria

Soledad Garcia Ferrari, 2012 Waterfront Regeneration presents a framework to help understand the complexity of waterfront redevelopment as city building. It uses this framework to examine how several cities around the North Sea have been experimenting with different approaches to waterfront regeneration over the last decade. The book explores how resources, regulations, and ideas have influenced the redevelopment of these waterfront areas through the creation of new design and development processes, the participation of different stakeholders including planners, urban designers, and architects, politicians, developers, landowners, and community groups, and the experimentation with innovative design approaches, particularly in relation to public spaces. The book also offers some reflection on future trends and priorities in waterfront regeneration and redevelopment around the North Sea and worldwide. Standard & Poor's Creditweek, 2003 7th International Symposium on String Processing and Information Retrieval, 2000. Annotation: The 31 papers discuss such topics as a model and software architecture for visualizing search results on the World Wide Web, a survey of longest common subsequence algorithms, an effective clustering algorithm to index high dimensional metric spaces, rotation invariant histogram filters for similarity and distance measures between digital images, a fully compressed pattern matching algorithm for balanced straight line programs, a word stemming algorithm for the Spanish language, fast multi pattern search algorithms for detecting intrusion, implementing document ranking within a logical framework, parallel searches using partitioned inverted files, and detecting prosodic stress and topics in spoken sentences. Subjects are not indexed. Annotation copyrighted by Book News Inc. Portland, OR.
