Thinking in Moral Terms Sigrún Svavarsdóttir, 2001 This work examines the nature of moral judgements In the course of developing an account of moral judgements the author discusses issues such as moral motivation the nature of desire the justification of commitments the relation between morality and rationality the difference between moral and scientific inquiry and the nature of properties of concepts and of normativity The author argues non cognitivists who construe moral judgements as mere expressions of sentiments that moral thought employs concepts which figure into the content of both cognitive and conative states of mind She argues that this view is not a cause for any metaphysical worries about moral properties and rejects the idea that the difference in the distinctive action guiding role of moral judgements is to be understood in terms of the metaphysical nature of the facts which render them true She also rejects the widespread idea that the distinctive action guiding role of moral judgements amounts to their being intrinsically motivating and argues that moral judgements motivate in collaboration with a desire which employs moral concepts in representing the desired state of affairs Against some moral naturalists the author argues that it is not a condition on the acceptance of a moral theory that its concepts have some explanatory function and that this marks the crucial difference between the concepts unique to moral thought and those characteristic of scientific or proto scientific thought She suggests that this reflects a difference in the aims of moral and scientific inquiry Appreciation of the distinctive aim of moral practice is required for the mastery of moral concepts and this is why moral judgements are invariably understood as action guiding even if they are not in all cases motivating

Koerner, Hans-Josef Niederehe, Kees Versteegh, 2008-07-14 Volume 2 treats in great detail and at times quite innovatively the individual stages of development of the study of language as an autonomous discipline from the growing awareness in 17th and 18th century Europe of genetic relationships among a host of languages to the establishment of comparative historical Indo European linguistics in the 19th century from the generation of the Schlegels Bopp Rask and Grimm to the Neogrammarians and the application of the comparative method to non Indo European languages from all over the globe Typological linguistic interests first synthesized by Humboldt as well as the development of various other non historical endeavours in the 19th and the first half of the 20th century such as language and psychology semantics phonetics and dialectology receive ample attention

Moral Philosophy and Moral Life Anne-Marie S ndergaard Christensen, 2020-12-03 Moral Philosophy and Moral Life addresses the questions of the role of moral philosophy and its relationship to our ordinary moral lives Christensen s argument is motivated by the belief that one of the most important obstacles for doing work in moral philosophy today is the lack of a coherent answer to the question of the role and status of moral philosophy and the theories it develops The first part untangles various criticisms of the dominant view of moral theories that challenge the explanatory foundational authoritative and action guiding role of these theories It also offers an alternative understanding of moral theories as descriptions of moral grammar The second part investigates the nature of the particularities relevant for an understanding of moral life both particularities tied to the moral subject her character her commitments and her moral position and particularities tied to the context of the subject her moral community and her language The final part marks a return to moral philosophy and addresses the wider question of what the revised conception of moral theories and the affirmation of the value of the particular mean for moral philosophy by developing a descriptive pluralistic and elucidatory conception of moral philosophy While the scope of the argument is wide the aims are more moderate to present an understanding of descriptive moral philosophy aimed at spurring debate about the status and role of
