Social Inequalities And Cancer:

Reducing Social Inequalities in Cancer S. Vaccarella, 2019-06 This volume summarizes the current scientific evidence and identifies research priorities needed to decrease social inequalities in cancer. The publication based on the expert knowledge of more than 70 international scientists from multiple disciplines undertakes a populations within populations approach highlighting the large variations in cancer incidence survival and mortality that exist between countries and within countries between social groups. Several factors may lead individuals with low social status to adopt unhealthy behaviors to be exposed to a wider range and a higher intensity of cancer risk factors and to have reduced access to health care services compared with their fellow citizens. A special focus is given to how the phenomenon of inequalities in cancer evolves and is reshaped over time driven by economic social political legislative and technological forces. It affects everyone but the most disadvantaged individuals are particularly hard hit. This IARC Scientific Publication was developed to serve as a reference for policy makers and public health officials linking to specific examples of interventions that may reduce future inequalities in cancer. The vignette is attached.

Social Inequalities and Cancer Manolis Kogevinas, 1997 In both industrialized and less developed societies cancer incidence and survival are related to socioeconomic factors. This fascinating volume, the first to examine the magnitude of these socioeconomic differences in relation to cancer, provides vital information for all those interested in public health. Cancer incidence and survival are related to socioeconomic status in both industrialized and less developed countries. These differences can be explained in part by known risk factors, particularly tobacco smoke, occupational exposures, reproductive behaviour, diet and biological agents.

T Social Environment and Cancer in Europe Guy Launoy, Vesna Zadnik, Michel P. Coleman, 2021-05-31 This contributed volume addresses the link between the social environment and cancer in Europe. The authors document the wide range and diverse trends in cancer incidence and patient survival in Europe and they identify the main mechanisms and key influences that underlie these inequalities. They suggest a series of actions and programmes to tackle these inequalities in Europe within the conceptual framework of intervention research. The influence of the social environment on the risk of suffering and dying from cancer is obviously a global phenomenon as evidenced by a growing number of studies and books. In part the underlying mechanisms are universal. Given the availability of a new standardised measure for social deprivation in Europe, the European Deprivation Index, the networking of population based cancer registries across Europe as efficient surveillance tools, the increasing comparability of the organisation of care in European countries and the recent launch of Europe's Beating Cancer Plan, this extensive review of social inequalities in cancer on a European scale is both relevant and timely. The book consists of 21 chapters organised in four sections: Part I General Considerations and Methodologic Aspects; Part II Social Disparities in Cancer Incidence and Survival Reports; Part III Social Disparities in Cancer Incidence and Survival Mechanisms; Part IV Towards an Evidence Based Policy for Tackling Social Inequalities in Cancer. Social Environment and Cancer in Europe Towards an Evidence Based

Public Health Policy is a unique resource that presents up to date methods for analysing quantitative data. It focusses on inequalities in cancer incidence and survival within the wider framework of inequalities in health. This book will be an essential reference for policy makers, researchers, public health professionals, social scientists and oncologists. Social Inequalities and Cancer Manolis Kogevinas, 1997. Social Inequities in Cancer Dana Hashim, Friederike Erdmann, Hajo Zeeb, 2019-08-19. Social Inequities in Cancer is a compendium of articles that identify barriers and metrics on the topic of modifiable and unnecessary cancer inequalities. Social inequities have long been recognised as a strong contributing factor in health and cancer inequalities for the past several decades. Despite progress in cancer treatment, cancer incidence, mortality and survival vary markedly between and within countries. Globalisation, greater life expectancy, emerging analytical technologies and the scalability of big data have revolutionized the vantage point from which social inequities can be studied. The focus of these articles is inequalities as they relate to cancer, with the inequalities ranging from the community to the global scale. David A. Leon,Gillian Walt,2001 Poverty Inequality and Health An International Perspective raises new and critical issues about health inequalities It is unique in that it provides the first truly international perspective on this problem with contributions from the developed and developing world The outcome of a Public Health Forum organised by the London School of Hygiene and Tropical Medicine this book brings together material from internationally recognised contributors from a wide range of disciplines and countries The chapters reflect this diversity ranging from the micro to the macro level from aetiology to intervention Topics covered include the over arching concepts linking economic and social forces and health status the extent to which ethical concerns lie at the heart of the issue of inequalities in health and attempts to ameliorate them macro level features of inequalities in health within and between countries an overview of the main body of work on inequalities in health in developed countries and those in transition within Europe specific pathways and mechanisms at the individual level that link poverty and inequality to health status the interaction of social and biological influences on health status throughout life specific disease specific links and issues of policy and interventions aimed at reducing inequalities in health The book brings together people from very varied disciplines to discuss an area of clear international interest and global importance As such it will be of value to the broad public health audience as well as research epidemiologists international policy analysts and policy makers and those concerned with economic development and health

The Political Economy of Social Inequalities Vicente Navarro,2002 In the last 2 decades of the 20th century we witnessed a growth in social inequalities within and among countries This has had a negative impact on the health and quality of life of large sectors of the populations This volume analyzes the reasons for this increase in inequalities and its consequences for the well being of populations

Our fear of cancer causes great harm to individual health and to society The fear of cancer is understandable But that fear is in some ways outdated as it fails to account for the medical progress made against this family of diseases In Curing Cancerphobia David Ropeik reveals the fascinating historical and psychological roots of our fear of cancer and documents the dramatic health and financial harms caused when that fear exceeds the risk Fear of cancer drives millions for whom screening is not recommended to screen for the disease anyway producing tens of thousands of emotionally damaging false positives and costing the US health care system an estimated 9 2 billion a year At the same time fear of cancer also causes many people for whom screening is recommended to avoid it altogether Modern screening technologies often identify cancers that do not spread or that grow so slowly they almost certainly will never cause harm in a person s lifetime Yet many of these people frightened by the word cancer in their diagnosis understandably choose more aggressive and risky treatments than their clinical conditions require These unnecessary treatments kill hundreds of people cause severe side effects in thousands and cost the health care system at least 5 2 billion a year Additionally consumers spend billions of dollars on vitamins and supplements organic food and other products that promise to reduce our risk of cancer but do not actually reduce it And an excessive fear of cancer causes resistance to potentially beneficial technologies like nuclear power and fluoridation of tap water After documenting these harms Ropeik offers tools and suggestions to help reduce the negative impacts of cancerphobia Based on extensive research including interviews with experts and cancer patients Curing Cancerphobia confronts our emotional relationship with the disease we fear more than any other Medical Anthropology

B.V. Sharma,2017-01-01 The essays in the book covered aspects of Tradition and Change The aspect of tradition largely referred to illness etiologies utilization of services of healers and other traditional health care service providers Change is referred to the changed logic and conflicting logic to change The themes selected for study are traditional but what is apparent is that the effort to approach them is different The book covers a range of topics and questions How illness and suffering are seen as consequences of social disruptions How decisions to seek cure from healers and sorcerers are seen as rational and appropriate How do we understand the politics of medicine What are the determinants of Public Private Partnership PPP models in Reproductive Child Health RCH How to understand the community system of risk classification in anaemia What matters in case of breast cancer in regard to body image Health Inequalities George Davey Smith,2003 The lifecourse perspective on adult health and on health inequalities in particular is one of the most important recent developments in epidemiology and public health This book brings together in a single volume the work of one of the most
