The Human Position:

The Human Place in Nature John Schooneveldt, 2025-04-02 This book explores a new approach to understanding the evolution of mind and consciousness by examining the perceptual abilities of animals and the way they experience their world. It offers a science-based bottom-up approach to our own conscious worldview by seeing it through the eyes of others. Emphasis is on the role of context in evolution and the way animals internalize and engage with the contextual properties of their world that are meaningful for them. The core argument is that a context which is subjective and comprised of the perceptual capacities offers new insights into the evolution of mind. Rather than seeing biological evolution in terms of the emergence of mindless forms and cultural evolution as the emergence of disembodied minds, the book seeks to integrate these two perspectives through the rigorous mapping of contexts. Key Features: Reveals an understanding of animal minds; Formulates a hypothesis for the evolution of consciousness; Includes a discussion of the origin of technological innovation; Provides a rationale for the ecology of mind; Proposes a theory of the evolution of language; Outlines the science of experience and how it influences choice; Explains the role of context and choice with respect especially to human ecology. The Human Place in the Cosmos Max Scheler, Upon Scheler's death in 1928, Martin Heidegger remarked that he was the most important force in philosophy at the time. Jose Ortega y Gasset called Scheler the first man of the philosophical paradise. The Human Place in the Cosmos, the last of his works, Scheler completed is a pivotal piece in the development of his writing as a whole, marking a peculiar shift in his approach and thought. He had been asked to provide an initial sketch of his much larger works on philosophical anthropology and metaphysics, but he was not able to complete them because of his early demise. Frings' new translation of this key work allows us to read and understand Scheler's thought within current philosophical debates and interests. The book addresses two main questions: What is the human being? And what is the place of the human being in the universe? Scheler responds to these questions within contexts of said two projected much larger works but not without reference to scientific research. He covers various levels of being: inorganic reality, organic reality including plant life and psychological life, all the way up to practical intelligence and the spiritual dimension of human beings and touching upon the holy. Negotiating two intertwined levels of being: life/energy/impulsion and spirit, this work marks not only a critical moment in the development of his own philosophy but also a significant contribution to the current discussions of continental and analytic philosophers on the nature of the person. The Last Human Job Allison Pugh, 2026-01-27 A timely and urgent argument for preserving the work that connects us in the age of automation. A compelling case for valuing care as a societal good and as skilled labor. The Nation: With the rapid development of artificial intelligence and labor-saving technologies like self-checkouts and automated factories, the future of work has never been more uncertain, and even jobs requiring high levels of human interaction are no longer safe. The Last Human Job explores the human connections that underlie our work, arguing that what people do for each other in these settings is valuable and worth preserving. Drawing on in-depth interviews and observations with people in a broad range of professions from physicians teachers and coaches to chaplains therapists caregivers and hairdressers Allison Pugh develops the concept of connective labor a kind of work that relies on empathy the spontaneity of human contact and a mutual recognition of each other's humanity The threats to connective labor are not only those posed by advances in AI or apps Pugh demonstrates how profit driven campaigns imposing industrial logic shrink the time for workers to connect enforce new priorities of data and metrics and introduce standardized practices that hinder our ability to truly see each other She concludes with profiles of organizations where connective labor thrives offering practical steps for building a social architecture that works Vividly illustrating how connective labor enriches the lives of individuals and binds our communities together The Last Human Job is a compelling argument for us to recognize value and protect humane work in an increasingly automated and disconnected world Image Analysis and Processing -- ICIAP 2009

Pasquale Foggia, Carlo Sansone, Mario Vento, 2009-08-29 This book constitutes the refereed proceedings of the 15th International Conference on Image Analysis and Processing ICIAP 2009 held in Vietri sul Mare Italy in September 2009 The 107 revised full papers presented together with 3 invited papers were carefully reviewed and selected from 168 submissions The papers are organized in topical sections on computer graphics and image processing low and middle level processing 2D and 3D segmentation feature extraction and image analysis object detection and recognition video analysis and processing pattern analysis and classification learning graphs and trees applications shape analysis face analysis medical imaging and image analysis and pattern recognition The Human Position Robert E.
