The Human In Command Peace Support Operations:

The Human in Command Peter Essens, 2001 Peace support operations have unique characteristics. These operations require qualities of commanders and their teams that are in addition to the qualities that are normally needed to conduct successful combat operations. Materiel doctrine and training must be tailored to fulfill their functions but it is the quality of the human in command that leads to successful missions in ambiguous situations. What are these qualities and what are the ingredients for effective operations? The Human in Command: Peace Support Operations combines personal experiences of commanders, empirical data on peace support issues and theoretical models. It provides the reader with insight into current issues such as leadership, mission characteristics, mission preparation and training, crisis management, operational conditions and processes, multinational cooperation and effectiveness of individual commanders, units and missions. Decision Making in Complex Environments Jan Noyes, 2017-09-18 Many complex systems in civil and military operations are highly automated with the intention of supporting human performance in difficult cognitive tasks. The complex systems can involve teams or individuals working on real time supervisory control, command or information management tasks where a number of constraints must be satisfied. Decision Making in Complex Environments addresses the role of the human, the technology and the processes in complex socio-technical and technological systems. The aim of the book is to apply a multi-disciplinary perspective to the examination of the human factors in complex decision making. It contains more than 30 contributions on key subjects such as military human factors, team decision making, issues, situation awareness and technology support. In addition to the major application area of military human factors, there are chapters on business, medical, governmental and aeronautical decision making. The book provides a unique blend of expertise from psychology, human factors, industry, commercial environments, the military, computer science, organizational psychology and training that should be valuable to academics and practitioners alike. Social Sciences and the Military Giuseppe Caforio, 2006-11-22 Examines the latest interdisciplinary and intradisciplinary global approaches to studying the military universe through a series of essays written by some of the most notable scholars in the field. Advances in Military Sociology Giuseppe Caforio, 2009-12-01 A selection of the papers presented at RC01's international conference in Seoul, July 2008. It offers an overview of the panorama of social studies on armed forces and conflict resolution in a context of fast-moving change. It presents studies that move beyond the very concept of globalization.

Law Enforcement Within the Framework of Peace Support Operations Roberta Arnold, 2008 Since the end of the Cold War and the emergence of asymmetric threats like terrorism, the military has been increasingly entrusted with tasks traditionally belonging to the police. This development is visible through the new challenges posed to modern Peace Support Operations (PSO) intended as an umbrella definition covering different types of post-conflict peace operations, be these mandated under Chapter VI or Chapter VII of the United Nations Charter with either peacekeeping, peace enforcing or even peacebuilding goals. The aim of this volume is primarily to provide guidance in the format of a handbook to those deployed in the field and who are confronted with legal issues In order to achieve this goal the handbook is structured as follows after this introduction Part II addresses the general question whether law enforcement shall be a PSO task Law enforcement is perceived by some states as a matter of self defense Part III then addresses the limits and possibilities of law enforcement by PSO The discussion continues with Part IV which provides some practical tools for those deployed to the field Part V focuses instead on law enforcement within PSO illustrating problems related to the prosecution of members of PSO forces suspected of illegal activities and Part VI then draws the conclusions
