Sampling in Archaeology Clive Orton,2000-05-11 The first overview of sampling for archaeologists for over twenty years this manual offers a comprehensive account of the applications of statistical sampling theory which are essential to modern archaeological practice at a range of scales from the regional to the microscopic Bringing archaeologists up to date with an aspect of their work which is often misunderstood it includes a discussion of the relevance of sampling theory to archaeological interpretation and considers its fundamental place in fieldwork and post excavation study It demonstrates the vast range of techniques that are available only some of which are widely used by archaeologists A section on statistical theory also reviews latest developments in the field and the formal mathematics is available in an appendix cross referenced with the main text    Using Computers in Archaeology Gary R. Lock,2003 Today archaeologists are spending more and more time examining the past with the aid of computers How does this increased dependence on technology affect the theory and practice of archaeology Using Computers in Archaeology is a comprehensive review of computer applications in archaeology from the archaeologist s perspective The book deals with all aspects of the discipline from survey and excavation to museums and education Discussion covers the theoretical aspects of computer applications with particular reference to GIS and the analysis of data but technical jargon is kept to a minimum With numerous illustrations case studies and examples Using Computers in Archaeology is a timely introduction to this increasingly important area of archaeology catering both for the student and the experienced archaeologist    New Directions in Archaeological Science Andrew S. Fairbairn,Sue O'Connor,Benjamin Marwick,2009-02-01 Archaeological Science meetings will have a personality of their own depending on the focus of the host archaeological fraternity itself The 8th Australasian Archaeometry meeting follows this pattern but underlying the regional emphasis is the continuing concern for the processes of change in the landscape that simultaneously effect and illuminate the archaeological record These are universal themes for any archaeological research with the increasing employment of science based studies proving to be a key to understanding the place of humans as subjects and agents of change over time This collection of refereed papers covers the thematic fields of geoarchaeology archaeobotany materials analysis and chronometry with particular emphasis on the first two The editors Andrew Fairbairn Sue O Connor and Ben Marwick outline the special value of these contributions in the introduction The international nature of archaeological science will mean that the advances set out in these papers will find a receptive audience among many archaeologists elsewhere There is no doubt that the story that Australasian archaeology has to tell has been copiously enriched by incorporating a widening net of advanced science based studies This has brought attention to the nature of the environment as a human artefact a fact now more widely appreciated and archaeology deals with these artefacts among others in this way in this publication    Surface Archaeology Alan P. Breaking the Surface Doug Bailey,2018-05-15 In Breaking the Surface Doug Bailey offers a radical alternative for understanding Neolithic houses providing much needed insight not just into prehistoric practice but into another way of doing archaeology Using his years of fieldwork experience excavating the early Neolithic pit houses of southeastern Europe Bailey exposes and elucidates a previously under theorized aspect of prehistoric pit construction the actions and consequences of digging defined as breaking the surface of the ground Breaking the Surface works through the consequences of this redefinition in order to redirect scholarship on the excavation and interpretation of pit houses in Neolithic Europe offering detailed critiques of current interpretations of these earliest European architectural constructions The work of the book is performed by juxtaposing richly detailed discussions of archaeological sites Etton and The Wilsford Shaft in the UK and Magura in Romania with the work of three artists who cut Ron Athey Gordon Matta Clark Lucio Fontana with deep and detailed examinations of the philosophy of holes the perceptual psychology of shapes and the linguistic anthropology of cutting and breaking words as well as with cultural diversity in framing spatial reference and through an examination of pre modern ungrounded ways of living Breaking the Surface is as much a creative act on its own in its mixture of work from disparate periods and regions its use of radical text interruption and its juxtaposition of text and imagery as it is an interpretive statement about prehistoric architecture Unflinching and exhilarating it is a major development in the growing subdiscipline of art archaeology
