The Contribution of Early Travel Narratives to the Historical Geography of Greece John Malcolm Wagstaff, 2004

The personal accounts journals and letters of early West European travellers have for many years formed an important source of information for historians. In this lecture delivered at New College Oxford in May 2003 Malcolm Wagstaff examines why scholars have used travel narratives, how they have used them and the types of information they contain. Looking in particular at those who travelled to Greece in the long 18th century 1685-90-1830 he addresses the methodological problems in using them as a source, warning that they should not be plundered unreservedly for the data that they contain. Defining the remits of historical geography Wagstaff reflects on the topics covered by those recording this golden age of travel including personal observations and experiences of climate, the appearance of places, sites and landscapes, the economy and landuse, administration and routes.

Archaeology and History in Roman, Medieval and Post-Medieval Greece Linda Jones Hall, 2016-12-05 The essays in Archaeology and History in Roman Medieval and Post Medieval Greece honor the contributions of Timothy E. Gregory to our understanding of Greece from the Roman period to modern times. Evoking Gregory's diverse interests the volume brings together anthropologists, art historians, archaeologists, historians and philologists to address such contested topics as the end of Antiquity, the so-called Byzantine Dark Ages, the contours of the emerging Byzantine civilization and identity in post Medieval Greece. These papers demonstrate the continued vitality of both traditional and innovative approaches to the study of material culture and emphasise that historical interpretation should be the product of methodological self-awareness. In particular this volume shows how the study of the material culture of post Classical Greece over the last 30 years has made significant contributions to both the larger archaeological and historical discourse. The essays in this volume are organized under three headings Archaeology and Method, the Archaeology of Identity and the Changing Landscape which highlight three main focuses of Gregory's research. Each essay interlaces new analyses with the contributions Gregory has made to our understanding of Medieval and Post Medieval Greece. Read together these essays not only make a significant contribution to how we understand the post Classical Greek world but also to how we study the material culture of the Mediterranean world more broadly.

The Mirror of Antiquity David Wills, 2009-03-26 During the last century writers as diverse as William Golding, Henry Miller, Lawrence Durrell, Evelyn Waugh, Virginia Woolf and Laurie Lee were captivated by Greece. They were joined in their production of travel accounts by hundreds of lesser known authors. This book exposes how the responses of travellers were conditioned by much more than their own opinions and personalities. The British education system, classical scholarship and the heroism demonstrated by the Greeks during the Nazi invasion of their country all contributed to shaping travel narratives. The author analyses the way in which all of the major archaeological sites were described, including the Athenian Acropolis, Delphi, Olympia, Heinrich Schliemann's Mycenae and Sir Arthur Evans' Knossos in Crete. The representation of the modern Greek people, particularly in the period after the Second World War is also explored at length Viewed as relics of the past the Greeks in literature were given the qualities and appearance of their ancestors David Wills shows how in the hands of twentieth century travel writers Greece became less a modern country and more a mirror of antiquity This book is essential reading for all who are interested in the history of travel and tourism reception of the classical past and recent Greek history Kampos ,2006 The Athenaeum ,1876
