Source: Wikipedia, 2013-09. Please note that the content of this book primarily consists of articles available from Wikipedia or other free sources online. Pages: 22. Chapters: British Music Experience, Cutty Sark, Eltham Palace, Fan Museum, Firepower, The Royal Artillery Museum, National Maritime Museum, Old Royal Naval College, Ranger's House, Rotunda, Woolwich Royal Observatory, Greenwich. Excerpt: The Cutty Sark is a British clipper ship. Built on the Clyde in 1869 for the Jock Willis shipping line, she was one of the last tea clippers to be built and one of the fastest coming at the end of a long period of design development which halted as sailing ships gave way to steam propulsion. The opening of the Suez Canal also in 1869 meant that steam ships now had a much shorter route to China so Cutty Sark spent only a few years on the tea trade before turning to the trade in wool from Australia where she held the record time to Britain for ten years. Improvements in steam technology meant that gradually steamships also came to dominate the longer sailing route to Australia and the ship was sold to the Portuguese company Ferreira and Co in 1895 and renamed Ferreira. She continued as a cargo ship until purchased by retired sea captain Wilfred Dowman in 1922 who used her as a training ship operating from Falmouth, Cornwall. After his death, she was transferred to the Thames Nautical Training College, Greenwich in 1938 where she became an auxiliary cadet training ship alongside HMS Worcester. By 1954 she had ceased to be useful as a cadet ship and was transferred to permanent dry dock at Greenwich, London, on public display. Cutty Sark is one of three ships in London on the Core Collection of the National Historic Ships Register, the nautical equivalent of a Grade 1 Listed Building, alongside HMS Belfast and SS Robin. She is one of only three remaining original composite construction wooden hulls on an iron frame clipper ships from the nineteenth
