Howson, Michael Otte, 1986 BACOMET cannot be evaluated solely on the basis of its publications. It is important then that the reader with only this volume on which to judge both the BACOMET activities and its major outcome to date should know some thing of what preceded this book's publication. For it is the story of how a group of educators mainly tutors of student teachers of mathematics committed themselves to a continuing period of work and self education. The concept of BACOMET developed during a series of meetings held in 1978-79 between the three editors Bent Christiansen, Geoffrey Howson and Michael Otte at which we expressed our concern about the contributions from mathematics education as a discipline to teacher education both as we observed it and as we participated in it. The short time which was at the teacher educators' disposal allied to the limited knowledge and experience of the students on which one had to build raised puzzling problems concerning priorities and emphases. The recognition that these problems were shared by educators from many different countries was matched by the fact that it would be fruitless to attempt to search for an internationally or even nationally acceptable solution to our problems. Different contexts and traditions rule this out.

The Convocation was structured to present the teaching of middle school mathematics from two points of view: teaching mathematics with a focus on the subject matter content or teaching mathematics with a focus on the whole child and whole curriculum. This book discusses the challenges before the nation's mathematical sciences community to focus its energy on the improvement of middle grades mathematics education and to begin an ongoing national dialogue on middle grades mathematics education.
