The Biodegradable Polymers Collection:

The Biodegradable Polymers Collection Rapra Technology, 2004 This key resource contains over 350 records from the internationally renowned Polymer Library abstracts database <http://www.polymerlibrary.com> and is bursting with information and useful references for those with an interest in flame retardance. It comprises a comprehensive collection of abstracts added to the database relating to this field with full bibliographic details followed by an extensive keyword index and author company trade name index. Mounting environmental and legislative pressures for reducing plastics waste are some of the factors leading to an increased demand for biodegradable plastics. Biodegradable polymers available today include starch, cellulose acetate, microbial polyesters, polyhydroxyalkanoates, polyvinyl alcohol, polycaprolactone, polylactic acid, polyethylene, polyurethanes and blends of some of these polymers. Applications as diverse as packaging, medical and surgical products and fishing are also highlighted. Almost all of the references referred to in the collection are available from our quick and efficient Document Delivery Service so you could have copyright cleared copies of original full text documents upon your desk within just a few hours. Whether you are venturing into a new project and need to be brought up to speed fast or looking for new ideas or solutions in your current work, The Biodegradable Polymers Collection could be just what you have been looking for.

Handbook of Biodegradable Polymers Catia Bastioli, 2020-03-09 This handbook covers characteristics, processability and application areas of biodegradable polymers with key polymer family groups discussed. Scott,D. Gilead,2012-12-06 Few scientific developments in recent years have captured the popular imagination like the subject of biodegradable plastics The reasons for this are complex and lie deep in the human subconscious Discarded plastics are an intrusion on the sea shore and in the countryside The fact that nature's litter abounds in the sea and on land is acceptable because it is biodegradable even though it may take many years to be bioassimilated into the ecosystem Plastics litter is not seen to be biodegradable and is aesthetically unacceptable because it does not blend into the natural environment To the environmentally aware but often scientifically naive biodegradation is seen to be the ecologically acceptable solution to the problem of plastic packaging waste and litter and some packaging manufacturers have exploited the green consumer with exaggerated claims to environmentally friendly biodegradable packaging materials The principles underlying environmental degradation are not understood even by some manufacturers of biodegradable materials and the claims made for them have been categorized as deceptive by USA legislative authorities This has set back the acceptance of plastics with controlled biodegradability as part of the overall waste and litter control strategy At the opposite end of the commercial spectrum the polymer manufacturing industries through their trade associations have been at pains to discount the role of degradable materials in waste and litter management This negative campaign has concentrated on the supposed incompatibility of degradable plastics with aspects of waste management strategy notably materials recycling Modern
