Distributed computing and Java go together naturally As the first language designed from the bottom up with networking in mind Java makes it very easy for computers to cooperate Even the simplest applet running in a browser is a distributed application if you think about it The client running the browser downloads and executes code that is delivered by some other system But even this simple applet wouldn t be possible without Java s guarantees of portability and security the applet can run on any platform and can t sabotage its host Of course when we think of distributed computing we usually think of applications more complex than a client and server communicating with the same protocol We usually think in terms of programs that make remote procedure calls access remote databases and collaborate with others to produce a single result Java Distributed Computing discusses how to design and write such applications It covers Java s RMI Remote Method Invocation facility and CORBA but it doesn t stop there it tells you how to design your own protocols to build message passing systems and discusses how to use Java s security facilities how to write multithreaded servers and more It pays special attention to distributed data systems collaboration and applications that have high bandwidth requirements In the future distributed computing can only become more important Java Distributed Computing provides a broad introduction to the problems you ll face and the solutions you ll find as you write distributed computing applications Topics covered in Java Distributed messages exchange crucial data between computers rather than between users information such as event notification and service requests Messaging is often used to coordinate programs in dissimilar systems or written in different programming languages Using the JMS interface a programmer can invoke the messaging services of IBM s MQSeries Progress Software s SonicMQ and other popular messaging product vendors In addition JMS supports messages that contain serialized Java objects and messages that contain Extensible Markup Language XML pages Messaging is a powerful new paradigm that makes it easier to uncouple different parts of an enterprise application Messaging clients work by sending messages to a message server which is responsible for delivering the messages to their destination Message delivery is asynchronous meaning that the client can continue working without waiting for the message to be delivered The contents of the message can be anything from a simple text string to a serialized Java object or an XML document Java Message Service shows how to build applications using the point to point and publish and subscribe models how to use features like transactions and durable subscriptions to make an application reliable and how to use messaging within Enterprise JavaBeans It also introduces a new EJB type the MessageDrivenBean that is part of EJB 2 0 and discusses integration of messaging into J2EE
