Carlson, 2009-05-01 The James Bay Cree lived in relative isolation until 1970 when Northern Quebec was swept up in the political and cultural changes of the Quiet Revolution The ensuing years have brought immense change for the Cree who now live with the consequences of Quebec s massive development of hydroelectricity timber and mineral resources in the North Home Is the Hunter presents the historical environmental and cultural context from which this recent story grows Hans Carlson shows how the Cree view their lands as their home their garden and their memory of themselves as a people By investigating the Cree s relationship with the land and their three hundred years of contact with outsiders the author illuminates the process of cultural negotiation at the foundation of ongoing political and environmental debates This book is more than a story of dam building and industrial logging in northern Quebec It offers a way of thinking about indigenous peoples struggles for rights and environmental justice in Canada and elsewhere The Conflict of European and

Eastern Algonkian Cultures, 1504-1700 Alfred Goldsworthy Bailey, 1969-12-15 The movement of one cultural group into the territory of another has always produced conflict a conflict which is resolved at times by the obliteration of one group but more often by a gradual fusion of elements drawn from both This study examines the conflict between the Europeans and the Indians precipitated by the arrival of the French in the New World The Indians were necessarily affected by the fur trade and the religious and social development of New France and the meeting of contrary cultures resulted in most cases in the obliteration of that of the Indian However a fusion of Indian and European elements sometimes occurred resulting in the birth of a Canadian culture The process has been repeated with the immigration of every new cultural group to Canada This study analyses the conflict and traces the fusion of Canadian culture in its initial stage First published in 1937 the book has proved an importance contribution to an area of early Canadian history which has been receiving renewed attention This edition contains the original text with the addition of an index and a new chapter appraising some of the leading developments of the past few years The Conflict of European and Eastern Algonkian Cultures, 1504-1700 Alfred

Rogers,1963 For nearly fifty years now various anthropologists have been concerned with the genesis of the hunting group and the hunting territory system as found among native peoples in northeastern North America The results of their work have led to two major contrasting views regarding the origin of the hunting group and hunting territory One theory states that these phenomena were aboriginal predating European contact The other theory is that they resulted from contact with Europeans especially through the aegis of the fur trade Introduction The Conflict of European and Eastern Algonkian Cultures 1504-1700: a Study in Canadian Civilization Alfred Goldsworthy Bailey,1937 Communications Historiques Canadian Historical Association.
