Armstrong, 2013-01-28 Critical of technologically determinist assumptions underpinning current educational policy Victoria Armstrong argues that this growing technicism has grave implications for the music classroom where composition is often

synonymous with the music technology suite The use of computers and associated compositional software in music education is frequently decontextualized from cultural and social relationships thereby ignoring the fact that new technologies are used and developed within existing social spaces that are always already delineated along gender lines Armstrong suggests these gender technology relations have a profound effect on the ways adolescents compose music as well as how gendered identities in the technologized music classroom are constructed Drawing together perspectives from the sociology of science and technology studies STS and the sociology of music Armstrong examines the gendered processes and practices that contribute to how students learn about technology the repertoire of teacher and student talk its effect on student confidence and the issue of male control of technological knowledge Even though girls and female teachers have technological knowledge and skill the continuing material and symbolic associations of technology with men and masculinity contribute to the perception of women as less able and less interested in all things technological In light of the fact that music technology is now central to many music making practices across all sectors of education from primary secondary through to higher education this book provides a timely critical analysis that powerfully demonstrates why the relationship between gender and music technology should remain an important empirical consideration The Resurgence of the State Myriam Dunn Cavelty,Sai Felicia Krishna-Hensel,Victor Mauer,2007 Do information and communication technologies networks really lead to a weakening of the nation state This volume revisits the retreat of the state thesis and tests its validity in the 21st century It will intrigue the reader with expert level analysis providing historical context and conceptualizing trends and social dynamics Technology & In/equality ,2000 Media, Technology and Everyday Life in Europe Roger Silverstone,2017-03-02 The importance of the daily experience of new information and communication technologies is highlighted by this timely volume The book is based on work carried out in the European Media Technology and Everyday Life Network and is structured round a series of seven empirical case studies drawn from research within Europe The application of this perspective draws attention not just to the significance of information and communication technologies for a mature understanding of the conduct of everyday life in contemporary Europe but also for the significance of that understanding for the development of communication and information policy The research makes a significant contribution to our understanding of the dynamics and evolution of a core dimension of European society as well as informing on going and important debates on the nature of the relationship between the social and the technological in the information and communication arena Cultural Attitudes Towards Technology and Communication 2006 Fay Sudweeks,Herbert Hrachovec,Charles Ess,2004 Cultural Attitudes Towards Technology and Communication 2004 Fay Sudweeks,Charles Ess,2004 Information and Communication Technologies in Everyday Life Leslie Haddon,2004-08-15 Addressing the opportunities and challenges presented by new forms of information and communication technologies this book is an introduction to understanding these issues in the context of everyday life The Information
