Telecommunications In Europe:

Telecommunications in Europe Eli Noam, 1992-08-20 Telecommunications represents one of the largest high technology equipment and service industries in the world Today there is growing support within the telecommunications industry for competition domestically and in world trade which is directly at odds with its distinctive political tradition of monopoly provision and minimally competitive international trade practices This raises major questions both for emerging public policy and for theorists concerned with the making of public policy This particularly true for Europe the focus of this study where the reform of the telecommunications sector has proven one of the most vexing issues confronting the unification of the European Common Market Noam's book is the first major attempt to address the complicated economic and policy issues of telecommunications in Europe He provides a thorough discussion of the evolution of central telephone networks equipment supply new value added networks and new telecommunications related services within the framework of a detailed country by country analysis This highly accessible and comprehensive study will be of interest to students and professionals in the areas of communications economics and political science

Cordless Telecommunications in Europe Wally H.W. Tuttlebee, 2012-12-06 The mobile telecommunications industry is experiencing considerable growth at present and with the increased traffic capacities which these systems provide and falling equipment prices it is expected to continue to grow throughout the 1990s Projections of equipment costs indicate that even portable cellular handsets could come within the reach of many customers well before the end of the century This will transform mobile communications services from a minority high cost application into a mainstream telecommunications service For both market and technical reasons it is likely that the distinction between cellular Telepoint and paging services will decrease and the provision of common hardware in the form of a Universal Personal Communicator will become increasingly feasible 1987 Green Paper on The European Commission's June Telecommunications included the proposal to create a European Telecommunications Standards Institute ETSI This has resulted in a major reform of the European standards setting process with the establishment of ETSI in March 1988 in Sophia Antipolis Nice France In the field of cordless telecommunications ETSI has charged its Technical Sub Committee RES 3 with producing the Digital European Cordless Telecommunications DECT standard by October 1991 In the meantime the UK CT2 Common Air Interface CAI has been agreed by ETSI RES in March 1990 as the basis for an Interim European Telecommunications Standard I ETS for Telepoint applications within Europe

Telecommunications Policy-making in the European Union Joseph W. Goodman, 2006-01-01 This book offers a good study of the development of telecommunications policy by the EU Great value to those interested in understanding both European telecommunications policy and more generally in how policy making operates in the EU Mark Thatcher West European Politics the book provides an interesting perspective on the evolution of nature of telecommunications policy making within the EU As a consequence the book should be of interest to telecommunications and politics government researchers alike Jason Whalley Communications Booknotes Quarterly This well written book deals with the emergence and shaping of telecommunications policy in Europe with a particular focus on the time period of 1987 1998 This book fills an important gap reviewing the initial formative years of European telecommunications policy development and liberalization in detail The book captures the complicated and interdependent policy formation process in Europe in a credible and thoughtful way without falling into the trap of admiring critical personalities and key actors The author has written an important and useful book which invites the research community to further explore the evolution of European telecommunications policy Erik Bohlin Communications Strategies Examining the emergence of a European Union telecommunications policy Joseph Goodman explains how and why the policy developed as it did and why certain reforms in the sector were easier to achieve than others He provides a history of the key actors in the policy making process from the first attempts by the national postal telegraph and telecommunication administrations to coordinate their telecommunications policies in the 1950s to the implementation of a comprehensive EU telecommunications regulatory structure in 1998 and the development of a new regulatory structure in 2003 The analytical framework employed by the author draws upon new institutionalism and actor based approaches providing an opportunity to evaluate the utility of a synthetic approach for examining and explaining EU policy making The focus of his analysis is on the European Commission s two pronged strategy of liberalisation and harmonisation which began in the late 1980s and culminated in an important milestone on January 1st 1998 when the EU Member States fully opened their telecommunications markets to competition He concludes that a synthetic approach which enables the researcher to apply a number of approaches to multiple settings and various levels of analysis is useful even necessary in understanding and explaining the many dimensions of EU policy making This authoritative study will be of

Trans-European Telecommunication Networks Colin Turner, 2002-09-11. Examining the nature of telecommunication networks and the rationale for the development of trans-European networks, the study explores the features networks need to exhibit if they are to complement the broad themes of Europe's industrial policy and demonstrates the economic importance of advanced telecommunications to business. The final chapters of the volume offer an analysis of the technology associated with the three chosen priorities of the EU in the development of advanced telecommunication infrastructure: the Integrated Services Digital Network (ISDN), the development of telematic networks, and the development of broadband networks.

The Privatisation of European Telecommunications Johan From, Kjell A. Eliassen, 2017-11-28. This international volume presents a comprehensive comparative study of the transformation of the European telecommunications industry from 1990 to the present. The book focuses on the old incumbent operators and their dramatic change from state agencies to listed companies. It analyzes the liberalization process as well as the corporatization and privatization of these companies. The contributors assess the conditions for the transformations taking place, the driving forces for change, the effects on management, the efforts of the EU during these processes, and ultimately the role of the private owner. Political science publications have all but excluded analysis of the newly privatized companies, their contribution to the liberalization process both before and after privatization, and the interplay between the national political and company levels. The book redresses this shortcoming and also features a double empirical focus in that the main national incumbents in Europe are analyzed and compared to Telenor, the Norwegian former incumbent.
