Televising Democracies:

Televising Democracies Bob Franklin, 2013-06-19 Published in 1992 this was the first book to assess the impact of television broadcasting on the House of Commons and its Members' behaviour. It looks at the implications for political journalism as well as broader questions concerning the role of media in a democracy. Bringing together contributions from senior broadcasters, politicians from various parties and academics and researchers, the book approaches the issues from a range of different perspectives. The first section of the book focuses on broadcasters' accounts of the difficulties involved in establishing the structure and organisation of Parliamentary broadcasting, while the second section gives politicians' own assessments of the consequences of the admission of cameras to the House. The third section looks at the findings of research studies assessing the type of materials broadcast, the impact on political journalism and audience responses. The fourth section draws comparison with the American, German and European experience of televising democracy. Media,

Elections, And Democracy: Royal Commission on Electoral Reform Frederick J. Fletcher, 1991-01-01 Media, Elections and Democracy examines campaign communication in selected industrial democracies. Klaus Schoenbach, Karen Siune, Doris Graber and a host of authors around the world contribute critical overviews of the systems in their countries. The studies deal with a wide range of issues in modern communication, including the principles and practices of news and public affairs coverage and the impact of new technologies. Televising Democracies Bob Franklin, 2013-06-19
