Ministerstvo vneshnikh ekonomiceskikh sviàzей, 1992 Strategic Planning in Technology Transfer to Less Developed Countries Christian Madu, 1992-01-27

Despite an avalanche of literature over the last 30 years there has been relatively little written on the role played by strategic planning in the transfer of technology particularly from developed to less developed countries. Technology transfer which involves the acquisition of inventive activity by secondary users is conceded vital to socio economic growth but usually it is looked at internationally from a micro perspective. Unlike other books Madu's volume looks at technology transfer holistically. It examines the advantages of technology transfer and its limitations by viewing recipient nations as systems in which social economic behavioral and political influences converge to help shape technological decisions. Only when a systems perspective like this is adopted and technology seen as a strategic variable can technology transfer be understood and successfully implemented says Madu. Madu thus identifies the failures of technology transfer as the result of malfunctions in three components of the system technology structure and behavior. He analyzes these malfunctions offers ways to repair them and considers technology from the viewpoints of both transerrer and receiver whose missions goals and objectives are often not only disparate but sometimes in conflict. He then offers what he calls prescriptive frameworks and guidelines to help implement transfer and to see it as a variable that must be integrated into national development planning. Throughout Madu makes it clear that the objective of technology transfer is the maximizing of social welfare. Using this overarching premise he is able to evaluate both the benefits and the social costs associated with technology transfer and to develop his prescriptive integrative models. Intended for specialists in international finance and development and international business management Madu's book will be of special value to teachers of graduate courses in socio economic development public policy and economics and to policymakers throughout government.

Technology Transfer in the Developing World Frank Meissner, 1988-10-20 The book balances broad brush macro policy issues with the nitty gritty micro project orientation. Development professionals and policy makers as well as knowledgeable laypersons who want to make the process mutually beneficial will find much food for thought in this book. Development Connections Few developing countries can easily obtain the technology needed to further their socioeconomic growth. This monograph offers a behind the scenes analysis of a government private sector venture the Chile Foundation FCh that has been successful in managing the transfer of technology. The author profiles numerous FCh projects focusing on the identification selection and management and marketing processes guiding these enterprises. He examines decision making trial and error and financing details. Meissner also demonstrates how feedback from performance monitoring makes it possible to apply past experiences to ongoing work. Finally he suggests what FCh's successes and failures can teach other enterprises attempting similar development.

Making The Link David Kaimowitz,2019-04-11 This book is about International Service for National Agricultural Research s ISNAR study to identify key factors that influenced the effectiveness and efficiency of links between research and technology transfer It recommends ways to improve these links and reflects the progress made till date Foreign Investment and Technology Transfer in Developing Countries Ramesh Chandra Chitrakar,1994 This is a study concerned with two important issues facing developing countries in general and Nepal in particular how to attract foreign investment and how to benefit from it It also compares foreign investment policy in Nepal with that in other developing countries and makes financial and economic analyses of foreign investment and technology transfer firms in Nepal International Technology Transfer by Small and Medium-Sized Enterprises Peter J. Buckley,Jaime Campos,Eduardo White,2016-07-27 The book is the culmination of a research effort which spanned all continents and involved a large number of research teams from both the industrialised and developing countries The book addresses a number of key issues related to technology transfer by small and medium sized enterprises most especially whether such companies are more effective transferors than larger transnational corporations A key aspect of the research was the fact that firms in source and host countries were matched to assure a degree of consistency in the firm coverage and their responses Transfer of Technology to Developing Countries Kamal Saggi,Bernard M. Hoekman,2004 Hoekman Maskus and Saggi analyze national and international policy options to encourage the international transfer of technology distinguishing between four major channels of such transfer trade in products trade in knowledge foreign direct investment and intra national and international movement of people They develop a typology of country types and appropriate policy rules of thumb as a guide to both national policymakers and rule making in the World Trade Organization as policies should differentiate between countries The authors also develop some rules of thumb for policy intervention These include Liberal trade policies for all types of countries Temporary encouragement of foreign direct investment inflows for low income countries Licensing for technical transformation and adaptive investments by local firms to apply technologies Policy options for source economies to encourage international transfer of technology to poor countries including fiscal incentives improvement of flows of public domain technologies with appropriate subsidies and price differentiation for exports of intellectual property products This paper a product of the Trade Team Development Research Group is part of a larger effort in the group to analyze issues related to the design of special and differential treatment of developing countries in the WTO Technology Transfer Goel Cohen,2004-02-20 This book identifies the major factors responsible for effective transfer of information and human expertise from an advanced country or a multinational corporation to the developing world Technology Transfer and Innovation for Low-Carbon Development Miria Pigato,Simon Black,Damien Dussaux,Zhimin Mao,Ryan Rafaty,Simon Touboul,2020-04-09 Technological revolutions have increased the world s wealth unevenly and in ways that have accelerated climate change This report argues that achieving The Paris Agreement s objectives would require a massive transfer of existing and commercially proven low carbon technologies LCT from high income to developing countries where the bulk of future emissions is expected to occur This mass deployment is not only a necessity but also an opportunity Policies to deploy LCT can help countries achieve economic and other development objectives like improving human health in addition to reducing greenhouse gases GHGs Additionally LCT deployment offers an opportunity for countries with sufficient capabilities to benefit from participation in global value chains and produce and export LCTs Finally the report calls for a greater international involvement in supporting the poorest countries which have the least access to LCT and finance and the most underdeveloped physical technological and institutional capabilities that are essential to benefit from technology

Technology and Developing Economies Zeinab Karake-Shalhoub,1990-05-21 This is the first empirical study to compare and contrast the effects of technology transfer to developing countries from the West and from Eastern European countries The author s primary purpose is to compare the effects of the different technologies offered by the two groups the capital intensive technologies of the West and the labor intensive technologies of the Eastern bloc on the economic growth of developing countries as measured by growth in output Using an analytical method based on the production input structure the author is able to quantify the impact on economic growth of technology transfer from different sources and with different characteristics Karake also evaluates the experience of developing countries in importing technologies and identifies the direction pattern and content of those technologies Scholars in international and economic development will find Karake s work an important contribution to the documented information concerning the trade in technology and its relation to economic growth and technological interdependence Following an introductory chapter Karake offers a general discussion of the relationships among development growth and technology She then introduces the econometric time series models and describes the basic study structure The next section examines policies mechanisms and trends in technology transfer in both the West and the East focusing on such issues as the factors and policies which affect technology transfer to the Middle East and patterns of technological exports A chapter devoted to model formulation empirical analysis estimation and results specifies the empirical models used in the study and presents statistical analysis of the appropriate data Finally Karake summarizes the major research findings suggests avenues for further research and assesses the future of technology transfer activity Four appendices containing important supplemental information and a bibliography complete the study
