Telling How Texts Talk:

Talking Texts Rosalind Horowitz, 2017-09-25 This volume examines how oral and written language function in school learning and how oral texts can be successfully interconnected to the written texts that are used on a daily basis in schools. Rather than argue for the prominence of one over the other the goal is to help the reader gain a rich understanding of how both might work together to create a new discourse that ultimately creates new knowledge. Talking Texts Provides historical background for the study of talk and text. Presents examples of children's and adolescents' natural conversations as analyzed by linguists. Addresses talk as it interfaces with domains of knowledge taught in schools to show how talk is related to and may be influenced by the structure, language and activities of a specific discipline. Bringing together seminal lines of research to create a cohesive picture of discourse issues germane to classrooms and other learning settings this volume is an essential resource for researchers, graduate students, classroom teachers and curriculum specialists across the fields of discourse studies, literacy and English education, composition studies, language development, sociolinguistics and applied linguistics.

This ancient art provides models and structures for teachers to support children's understanding and use of narrative and reveals fascinating insights into other times and cultures. The authors relate how teachers develop their own storytelling skills and the abilities of children to share and retell personal and traditional tales. In A Story to Tell performers, teachers and students describe how stories from all parts of the world can be enjoyed, discussed, adapted and performed to develop language and literacy learning. They explore the use of stories in humanities, religious education and other areas of the curriculum. The role of visiting professional storytellers is examined with examples of their work with children and teachers in the UK and Ireland. And the student
