

the storm

she'd been aboard her boat now in a storm that raged for weeks when she caught sight of two people who were lost and all at sea one looked so exhausted as he swam against the tide and the other gasped for every breath just trying to survive she looked on in confusion for they must have had a boat so now why were they without it? and she called out to them both

"you should've kept yourselves on board and not abandoned ship you should have worn a life jacket and better learnt to swim" so in between their fight for life they tried hard to explain that their boat had been destroyed by bolts of lightning, wind and rain yet she barely heard their reason for, whilst she sat safe and dry she had failed to see how hard they'd worked to keep themselves alive but as she watched them suddenly engulfed by violent waves her fortune and her privilege engulfed her just the same she realised quite uncomfortably that she was still afloat only since she had been lucky to avoid a damaged boat so instead of blaming, shouting at them telling them to swim she threw them both a lifeline and she pulled them safely in and not much longer afterward the sky became less grey the waves grew ever calmer and they heard the thunder fade and she realised as she sat there and they watched the storm die down that it felt far better helping than if she had watched them drown

The Storm Canto the First Oh who that has gazed on the ocean at rest When the bright morning sun beams illumin d its breast When the winds were all hush d and the waves were all even Reflecting the unclouded radiance of Heaven Oh who then a thought of its terrors could form When the powers of destruction are riding the storm When the waves are all swelling to mountains of foam And the heart stricken mariner thinks of his home The home of his youth on his dear native shore And the far distant friends that shall greet him no more About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works

The Bird That Sang in the Storm and Other Poems Kristi Bishop,2019-07-19 The Bird That Sang in the Storm and Other Poems shares thoughts and reflections on a variety of topics ranging from nature s grandeur and beauty to our need for God s love Through her use of descriptive language imagery and lyrical cadences the author inspires readers to be mindful of blessings both large and small

The poems in this book were written over the course of thirty five years and drawn from hardship as well as joyful experiences Many were penned in the quiet of the early morning as an observation of some aspect of creation as a cry to God for comfort and guidance or in anticipation of the life awaiting us in heaven

Spirit of the Storm David Irving

Dobson,2016-08-21 Excerpt from Spirit of the Storm And Other Poems Poets are traditionally supposed by red blooded people to be continually bemoaning their unhappy fate The truth is that red blooded people indulge in their feverish and largely meaningless activities in order not to have any time to contemplate their own unhappy fate the realization of which would be unendurable The poet is braver he can face the truth about his fate And he has that courage precisely because he can see himself from high above and from far off as one of many So that when he speaks for himself he is in the degree of his perception speaking for others It is for this reason that when we can not write poetry we read it We find ourselves in our most secret moods mirrored in another 8 poems The poet reveals our hiddenmost hopes and fears to us And conversely those who read poetry are those who are debarred only by some technical limitation from Writing it They are potential poets Hence the poet has always in a sense fellow poets for an audience And he pleases them to the degree in which he utters for them their unwritten poems The Here and Now in which mankind is imprisoned has never it would seem been more irksome to the im patient soul than since the introduction Oi machinery It seems that we can bear almost anything better than our nineteenth and twentieth century servitude to the machine Poets no matter how gloomy a view of human fate they took used to find many things to be incidentally enthusiastic about such as owers and stars and beauти ful women But the owers are being pushed further and further out of sight by the huge extensions of city brick and mortar the stars are more and more hidden from our gaze by factory smoke and beautiful women no longer seen as the consolations of a dreary life but rather as fellow victims are quite as likely to evoke pity as admiration Thus poetry becomes less and less calcu lated to give immediate cheer even in its more ostensibly gay moods it has an undertone of mocking irony But it has a deeper comfort which all those who have suffered and are not afraid to remember it must ever be grate ful for About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works
