This textbook intends to do a clear, informal review of the history of the English language. Although the main focus is not to provide a thorough social description of the different periods in which the history of English is divided, we want to make it clear that language has changed because it is used by society and therefore one cannot be understood without the other.

This study is about a popular manifestation of Islamic devotion that embraces a pluralist setting, keeping itself in a dynamic dialogue with non-Muslim practices. With evidence from various public devotional narratives and ritual practices, the author argues that even universal understanding of living Islam remains incomplete if we do not consider this locally produced pluralised devotional setting that surrounds it He seeks to address various aspects of local and localised Islam through an examination of Gugudu s local and popular transformation of normative Islam giving particular focus to the various devotional rituals that blend Muslim and Hindu practices in the public event of Muharram
