Art of the Mammoth Hunters Mariana Gvozdover,1995 Unique examples of Paleolithic art and an extremely rich collection of stone and bone implements make the site of Avdeevka one of the most interesting and important of the Upper Paleolithic on the Russian plain. These assemblages point to clear connections with sites such as Willendorf and Dolni Vestonice in central Europe as well as with the similar Russian site at Kostenki. The worked bone and art objects include bone awls and decorated points, burnishers, diadems, trinkets and beads. There are fragments of bone with engraved ornament, there are utilitarian objects with anthropomorphic and zoomorphic decoration, there are figurines of mammoth and horse, and there are fourteen female figures with distinctive artistic characteristics that distinguish them from similar material from other sites. The descriptions and illustrations of all these objects have been prepared by Mariana Gvozdover who began excavating at Avdeevka in 1972; they are here edited for publication by Paul Bahn.

Andrea Šajnerová-Dušková,2007 Moravia played a very important role in the Palaeolithic migration of ancient Homo sapiens as it made a natural corridor between the south and the north of central Europe which allowed for shifting of both humans and animals in times of glaciations, a fact amply evidenced by the dense network of Palaeolithic settlements. This study looks again at the material from Upper Palaeolithic Czech sites using the most recent use-wear techniques, equipment and analysis.
