Faceless Men & Other Macedonian Stories Meto Jovanovski,1992 Perhaps villagers were the best natural critics of life under Communism in eastern Europe Theirs is a perspective at once ironic satiric and filled with stoicism In these stories from Macedonia Meto Jovanovski writes wittily against urban authorities whose agents are everywhere and nowhere and who conduct absurd modernizing campaigns such as shooting all the dogs in the village He writes tellingly of the indignities of queues telephones air travel and military conscription And like John Berger he persuades us that it is often the villager who is most in touch with the deepest realities of life In Flight to Eternity for example it seems entirely natural that a man should gently make love to his dying wife a powerful scene of the sort hard to find in the brutal and sophisticated sexuality of modern literature

Profitable Advertising ,1906-12 The Big Horse and Other Stories of Modern Macedonia Milne Holton,1974 It was not until after the Second World War and the successful struggle of Tito s partisans and the forging of a new Yugoslavia that Macedonia realized in some measure her autonomy as a republic federated within that new state It was only then that she had her own university that Macedonian became the teaching language of her schools and that she achieved a variety of self government It is pride in these achievements that has shaped the consciousness of her people This collection offers for the first time in English representative stories of 20 writers all of whom are still living and all of whom began their careers after 1945 They are the writers of at least two generations Some were partisans but some never knew war and are still in their twenties or thirties Their stories range from rather traditional work in imitation of Russian or European masters to radical experiments in the anti story
