Duckham* Herbert Stanley JEVONS, 1969 The British Coal Trade Herbert Stanley Jevons, 2013-09 This historic book may have numerous typos and missing text Purchasers can usually download a free scanned copy of the original book without typos from the publisher Not indexed Not illustrated 1915 edition Excerpt cases of the owners selling the pit rather than face the loss of a prolonged strike The buyers have either had to make profit possible by expensive improvements of machinery or to face a long strike in reducing the price list Presumably they will have taken into account the possibility of much expense in reducing the price list when valuing the colliery for purchase It is indeed becoming more and more difficult to effect any change at all in price lists once established and it is also becoming more difficult to fix a price list in the first instance An interesting case is that of the Gelli pit belonging to Messrs Cory Brothers in South Wales The pit was a comparatively new one which Messrs Cory Brothers had taken over and wished to open The price list they offered proved unacceptable to the men who went out on strike in October 1910 After some months the executive of the South Wales Miners Federation took control of the case and they furnished the strike pay In spite of various attempts and negotiations neither side has seen its way to offer sufficient for the parties to meet and make a bargain with the result that the pit has remained closed for more than three years and there is still no prospect of its being opened The men on strike gradually drifted away to find employment in other pits and in September 1913 the Miners Federation ceased payment of strike pay The result is that the pit is practically of no commercial value because no member of the South Wales Miners Federation can be got to work there and as this includes practically all the experienced men the company has no prospect of opening the pit at the price list it offers 1 The negotiation of a price list is indeed a most dramatic event in the Economic Organization of the British Coal Industry 1934 is a study that shows on the one hand the organization of the coal industry in Britain in the 1930s in conjunction with the economic forces working behind the industry and on the other hand shows the influence of political authoritarian thought on its structure Managing Industrial Decline Michael Dintenfass, 1992

Managing Industrial Decline examines the dramatic decline of the British coal industry through the lens of comparative business history challenging the prevailing belief that the industry's decline was due primarily to global economic factors and instead demonstrating that entrepreneurial failings of individual coal firms contributed significantly to the problem Through a comparative analysis of company histories Dintenfass shows how the full range of business operations at British coal firms including labor management policies technological choices and marketing practices affected their performance The histories of individual firms demonstrate that the managements could improve productivity increase sale prices and sustain profitability even as the coal trade succumbed to cyclical depression and secular decline According to Dintenfass comparisons between the individual firms and the regional coal industries to which they belonged show that neighboring firms were slow to introduce the modest innovations that the successful firms pioneered Since there were few barriers to the implementation of these strategies it appears that Britain's coal masters miscalculated their costs and benefits contributing to the problem by failing to adopt inexpensive and accessible second best solutions to production and commercial problems Managing Industrial Decline breaks new ground in the field of business history and restores entrepreneurship to its proper place in the analysis of industrial decline Present Status of the British Coal Industry ... John Herman Bruins, 1931 Colliery Guardian, and Journal of the Coal and Iron Trades , 1893 Daily Consular and Trade Reports , 1927 The Present Position of the British Coal Trade John Harry Jones, 1930 The Economic Development of the British Coal Industry from Industrial Revolution to the Present Day Neil Keith Buxton, 1978

The novel begins with Richard Papen, a bright but troubled young man, arriving at Hampden College. Richard is immediately drawn to the group of students who call themselves the Classics Club. The club is led by Henry Winter, a brilliant and charismatic young man. Henry is obsessed with Greek mythology and philosophy, and he quickly draws Richard into his world. The other members of the Classics Club are equally as fascinating. Bunny Corcoran is a wealthy and spoiled young man who is always looking for a good time. Charles Tavis is a quiet and reserved young man who is deeply in love with Henry. Camilla Macaulay is a beautiful and intelligent young woman who is drawn to the power and danger of the Classics Club. The students are all deeply in love with Morrow, and they are willing to do anything to please him. Morrow is a complex and mysterious figure, and he seems to be manipulating the students for his own purposes. As the students become more involved with Morrow, they begin to commit increasingly dangerous acts. The Secret History is a masterful and thrilling novel that will keep you speculating until the very end. The novel is a warning tale about the dangers of obsession and the power of evil.
