and Care Needs among Older Adults Jian Sun, Hongye Luo, Yi Zeng, 2025-09-12 Globally a shift in population structures and disease spectrum is inevitable. The latest global burden of disease study revealed that the average healthy life expectancy has steadily increased from 1990 to 2019 worldwide. However, there is a concerning trend in which the growth in healthy life expectancy is lower than the growth in life expectancy in 198 out of 204 countries evaluated. This implies that people spend more time in sub optimal health despite living longer. Moreover, non-communicable diseases contribute an increasingly significant portion of the disease burden in low and middle income countries, growing from one third to almost two thirds from 1990 to 2019. This mainly results from preventable risk factors. It is important to approach aging with a positive outlook. This entails guaranteeing sufficient medical care and proactively managing health issues in older adults. Importantly, since several diseases are often irreversible, prevention is key. Social and psychological factors due to their nebulous harm have struggled to gain attention over a long period. We should aim to make the additional years gained during old age as healthful as those in other life stages.

A Guide to Care of the Elderly R. B. Shukla, David Brooks, 1996 This text looks at the increasing demands of caring for the elderly. It is divided into four sections covering the foundations of elderly care, common medical problems encountered by the elderly, specific important diseases and their management, and new ideas, research, and audit.

Age as an Equality Issue Sandra Fredman, Sarah Spencer, 2003-07 Until recently, age discrimination attracted little social opprobrium. However, ageism has now been thrust onto the equality agenda by the spectre of an ageing population. This has led to a range of policies on active ageing. Most importantly, legally binding legislation prohibiting age discrimination in employment will need to be in place by 2006. Remarkably little attention has been paid to the key issues. To what extent is age inevitably linked with declining capacity? What are the central aims of a policy on age equality and how can these be realised in law? How should law and policy address age discrimination in health, education, and employment? What lessons can be learned from the US and Europe? And should young people be dealt with in the same way as older people? This book answers these questions in a series of chapters by experts from a wide range of disciplines. It begins by examining the nature of the ageing process and then turns to a detailed analysis of the concept of age equality. In the light of this analysis the following three chapters critically assess employment, education and health. A separate chapter is devoted to discrimination against children. The last two chapters consider the experience in the US and other European countries.

Handbook of Research on Economic and Social Impacts of Population Aging Bayar, Yilmaz, 2021-06-25 The increases in global wealth and the developments in the field of health have led to decreases in mortality rates, increases in life expectancy and decreases in fertility rate, leading to a population that is rapidly consisting more and more of older individuals. The demographic changes affect nearly all parts of society including economics, education, health, social security systems, socio-cultural activities and more. Thus, it is essential to study the impacts that an aging population will have on society. The Handbook of Research on Economic and Social Impacts of Population Aging analyzes the economic and social impacts of population aging from a multidisciplinary perspective. Covering topics such as life expectancy, social welfare, health, social security and more, this book is essential for social scientists, sociologists, demographers, economists, medical professionals, government officials, policymakers, professionals, researchers, managers, students and academicians looking to understand the effects of an aging population on modern society.

Care-Related Quality of Life in Old Age Marja Vaarama, Richard Pieper, Andrew Sixsmith, 2010-10-29 It's a core issue at the heart of elder care while best practice data exist for long term care, quality of life as a concept measure and standard for care outcomes remains elusive. The result of an ambitious European research initiative the Care Keys Project addresses quality of life issues among frail care dependent seniors taking their social as well as health needs into account. This resulting volume explains the theory behind Care Keys, its methodology, empirical findings and practical considerations in promoting effective, efficient elder care aimed at social and emotional well-being and including disabled and cognitively impaired patients.
