The Bronze Age In Hungary Hereditas:

Death and the Body in Bronze Age Europe Marie Louise Stig Sørensen, Katharina Rebay-Salisbury, 2023-01-05 This volume offers new insights into the radical shift in attitudes towards death and the dead body that occurred in temperate Bronze Age Europe Exploring the introduction and eventual dominance of cremation Marie Louise Stig Sørensen and Katharina Rebay-Salisbury apply a case study approach to investigate how this transformation unfolded within local communities located throughout central to northern Europe They demonstrate the deep link between the living and the dead body and propose that the introduction of cremation was a significant ontological challenge to traditional ideas about death In tracing the responses to this challenge the authors focus on three fields of action the treatment of the dead body the construction of a burial place and ongoing relationships with the dead body after burial Interrogating cultural change at its most fundamental level the authors elucidate the fundamental tension between openness towards the new and the conservative pull of the familiar and traditional

The Human Body

in Early Iron Age Central Europe Katharina Rebay-Salisbury, 2016-12-08 Identities and social relations are fundamental elements of societies To approach these topics from a new and different angle this study takes the human body as the focal point of investigation It tracks changing identities of early Iron Age people in central Europe through body related practices the treatment of the body after death and human representations in art The human remains themselves provide information on biological parameters of life such as sex biological age and health status Objects associated with the body in the grave and funerary practices give further insights on how people of the early Iron Age understood life and death themselves and their place in the world Representations of the human body appear in a variety of different materials forms and contexts ranging from ceramic figurines to images on bronze buckets Rather than focussing on their narrative content human images are here interpreted as visualising and mediating identity The analysis of how image elements were connected reveals networks of social relations that connect central Europe to the Mediterranean Body ideals nudity sex and gender aging and many other aspects of women's and men's lives feature in this book Archaeological evidence for marriage and motherhood war and everyday life is brought together to paint a vivid picture of the past

Archaeology as with all of the social sciences has always been characterized by competing theoretical propositions based on diverse bodies of locally acquired data In order to fulfill local regional expectations different goals have been assigned to the practitioners of Archaeology in different regions These goals might be entrenched in local politics or social expectations behind cultural heritage research This comprehensive book explores regional archaeologies from a sociological perspective to identify and explain regional differences in archaeological practice as well as their existing similarities This work covers not only the currently dominant Anglo American archaeological paradigm but also Latin America Western and Eastern Europe Asia and Africa all of which have developed their own unique archaeological traditions The contributions in this work cover these alternative archaeologies in the context of their own geographical political and socio economic settings as well as the context of the currently accepted mainstream approaches
