M.B. Huish [and] (A.C.R. It's written chronologically so the reader knows what to start with and which skills needs to be achieved first in order to move forward with the personal development. What inspired me to write this book was the fact that I personally wasn't able to find any literature about making portraits from A-Z when I started painting. I wanted the most essential information to get me started. I bought tons of books and I was lucky to befriend one of Denmark's most famous and skilled portrait painters. With a combination of the above and many hours of practice it took me around 6 years to be where I am now ready to write a book that breaks it all down to the most essential part of portrait painting. Personally it was a very steep learning curve for me due to the fact that going through all my material I needed to separate the most relevant pieces of information from non essential. Nevertheless I persevered and today I'm proud to be able to call myself a self taught portrait painter. I want to share my self obtained knowledge to my fellow artists out there those who do not have time to do research or an academy to teach them. I want you to know that it is indeed possible to obtain a satisfying level without formal
